Last Offer of Contest is Announced Today

Winners of the Automobile and Other Prizes Will be Those Who Hustle Best in Remaining Time.

THE LAST OFFER.

From now until the close of the contest, Saturday evening, November 18, at nine o'clock, a ballot good for 60,000 extra votes will be given for each $15 worth of NEW subscriptions. Candidates can secure as many of these extra ballots as they desire, the only stipulation being that they have the required amount of business for each. Subscriptions for any amount up to ten years can be used in making up clubs. THERE WILL BE NO OTHER OFFER OF ANY KIND DURING THE REMAINDER OF THE CONTEST. Candidates are advised to do their best now for the finish. The prize winners will be those who are the best hustlers from now until the end. Turn in subscriptions as you get them and as soon as you have enough business for an extra ballot the same will be given you.

"Here they come down the home stretch."

You've been to the races, haven't you? Sat in the grandstand as you craned forward to see the finish?

Some one cries: "Here they come down the stretch," and you rise on tiptoe, calling out in the hope of encouraging your favorite. What a sight, sport! The leaders, looking like sculptured streaks of lightning, come tearing past. Neck and neck they flash down the track and close upon them come the others pressing up and up, 'till you wonder if the present leaders will be first under the wire after all.

No race that ever was run has been watched with keener interest than this great auto contest race which has entered its last lap now! The people of the whole county are "craning forward," so to speak, to cheer the candidates who are scoring on the home stretch. "Go to it!" "Come on Croesus." "Close up Starlight! Those are the cries you hear at the races. Can't you imagine the air ringing with the similar cries of the excited populace. "Come on Aspiration!" "Beat 'em to it, Popularity!" Why! most of these people have paid hard money in order to assist some particular candidate to "score" on competitors, and naturally they are excited! If you have received assistance from many of your friends and well wishers, for goodness sake hustle now! Show them that you are worthy of the confidence they have placed in you.

Who will be "first under the wire"—among all the candidates on Saturday night, November 18 at 9 o'clock? That is the momentous question! Nobody can tell you. While the leaders have been doing famously the past week, and while it looks as though those who are now ahead would surely be first under the wire—there is always the possibility of some candidates coming in with a "Garrison Finish."

A "Garrison Finish" is one where a winning horse keeps behind all others until the very last minute, then gathers himself together for a tremendous burst of speed and darts past the leaders, coming first under the wire, "by a short eyelash." Nothing can equal the surprise of the vanquished racers under such circumstances. And nothing can create such a cyelone of excitement among the spectators on the bleachers and along the track.

And the racing candidates are coming down the "home stretch."

And the question is—what will some candidate way down the list do, for "surprises" are coming thick and fast along the home stretch."

GET LONG TERM SUBSCRIPTIONS.

This is the time when the loyal friends of the candidates should come to their aid with long term subscriptions as the votes from those mount up rapidly and go a long ways toward making up a club and thereby gaining many extra votes. Candidates should also know that any subscriptions secured to date can be extended and the subscriptions thus extended will be credited with votes to the extended period, less the number already issued. Thus, if a new one year subscription which has been turned in is extended four years, making it a five year subscription the candidate will be given 50,000 votes less the 5,000 that have been issued. It is easily seen that if any candidate does this they will soon have a large number of votes. And many of the people who have already given you a subscription will cheerfully extend the same if you but go to them and explain just how many votes it will mean to you. The best way to find out if they will do this is to ask them. A few extended subscriptions may be the means of making you a prize winner.

GET THE EXTRA VOTES.

From now until the end of the contest a 60,000 bonus ballot, together with the regular scale of votes, will be given contestants for each $15 on subscriptions turned in. The more business you do now the greater will be your vote. Do not stop when you reach $15 but keep on working and get more subscribers. Contestants are not limited as to the number of bonus ballots they can get. For each $15, no matter what combinations of subscriptions you have, a ballot good for 60,000 votes will be issued besides the votes you secure regularly on the subscriptions. No single subscription may exceed ten years.

Now is the time to make yourself a winner. It all depends on what the contestants do in the last few days. They cannot afford to lose a minute.

COUNTING THE HOURS.

Contestants are counting the hours they have to work to win the auto or one of the other prizes.

They are working for the main issue and working hard. Practically every candidate who was active during the early part of the contest is still in the game and struggling hard to be a prize winner.

RUMORS FLYING.

At this time of the contest many rumors are flying. No doubt you have heard that so and so or someone else had millions of votes or that some other candidate would secure enough business at the last minute to win the auto.

These are rumors only, started many times intentionally to discourage some candidate. Pay no attention whatever to them. Keep on going, do the work, get the subscriptions that win the prizes, let the others talk while you work and when the contest ends you will have the satisfaction of winning the prize you worked for.

START PAPER AT ANY TIME.

A number of inquires have been received at this office in regard to taking out a subscription now and having the paper started at a later date. This can be done and the votes will be issued on all orders of this kind. Many who are taking some other paper wish to discon-

DEMOCRATIC TICKET WINNER IN COUNTY

Landslide Majorities From 100 to 1000 Against Republicans.

WOODRING RE-ELECTED

Has Slight Lead Over Commissioner Zimmerman—Goss Wins for County Auditor—Noll Polls Highest Vote on Democratic Ticket.

Republican apathy and a Democratic landslide defeated the entire Republican ticket in Centre County on Tuesday. With majorities ranging from 100 up to 1000 and over, the Democrats captured everything in sight. All that the Republicans got was but what the law allowed—a minority party member of the Board of Commissioners, also of the Board of County Auditors. Jacob Woodring was re-elected, being the minority member of the Board of Commissioners. W. H. Goss, of Pine Grove Mills, was elected by the Republicans the minority member of the Board of County Auditors. Mr. Woodring polled about 120 votes more than Commissioner H. E. Zimmerman. Mr. Goss led his running-mate, Clement H. Gramley, by a somewhat greater margin. For a time it was believed that the Republicans might pull through George H. Yarnell, for Sheriff, and Recorder William H. Brown, for re-election, but the Democratic sweep carried them down to defeat with the rest of the ticket. The complete ticket elected follows.

For Sheriff,
ARTHUR B. LEE.

For Treasurer,
JOHN D. MILLER.

For District Attorney,
D. PAUL FORTNEY.

For Commissioners,
WILLIAM H. NOLL,
DANIEL A. GROVE,
JACOB WOODRING.

For Prothonotary,
DAVID R. FOREMAN.

For Recorder,
W. FRANCIS SPEER.

For Register,
J. FRANK SMITH.

For Auditors,
JEREMIAH BRUNGART,
SINIE H. HOY,
W. H. GOSS.

For County Surveyor,
J. H. WETZEL.

For Coroner,
DR. P. S. FISHER.

Blankenburg Wins in Phila.

Rudolph Blankenburg, for many years a reformer, was on Tuesday elected Mayor of Philadelphia over George H. Earle, Jr., Republican, having a plurality of 4364. His election was a complete surprise to political circles. Blankenburg was on the Keystone and Democratic tickets.

Landslide in Kentucky.

After having been regarded as a more or less doubtful State for several years, Kentucky on Tuesday gave a landslide vote for the Democratic ticket. McCreary, Democratic, was elected Governor by 30,000 or 40,000.

Result in New York.

The Republicans in New York on Tuesday regained control of the assembly. Tammany was given a desperate fight, but succeeded in carrying the city of New York. The Republicans won out in Kings County.

Democratic Gains in Ohio.

Ohio returned Democratic gains on Tuesday in Cincinnatia, Cleveland and Columbus. Eight Socialist Mayors were elected in the State.

Foss Wins in Massachusetts.

The Democrats re-elected Governor Foss in Massachusetts by a reduced majority. His majority may not exceed 9,000.

RESULT IN BELLEFONTE

Count of Vote Showed General Cutting in all Three Wards.

Tuesday's election in Bellefonte borough was featured by general cutting of tickets. There were a number of spirited contests. Mrs. R. S. Brouse and Mrs. Charles E. Gilmour were elected members of the School Board for the two 2 years terms. For the 6-year term, Dr. M. J. Locke defeated D. F. Fortney by a majority of 99. Charles F. Cook, Republican, and A. C. Mingle, Democratic, were elected to the two 4-years terms.

For Council Theodore Cherry defeated Edward Haupt, Republican, in the West Ward, by a marjority of 12. In the North Ward John S. Walker, Republican, was elected by a majority of 109 over Oliver Witmer. Dr. J. M. Brockerhoff was elected to Council in the South Ward, being on both tickets. Although the ward is strongly Democratic he polled 58 votes more on the Republican than he did on the Democratic ticket.

For Overseers of the Poor Harry Badger and Alexander Morrison, Republicans, were elected over Patrick J. Gherrity and William Rider. Gherrity lost out by the narrow margin of three votes. The vote by wards on school directors, members of Council and Overseers of the Poor follows:

Died from Heart Failure.

Mrs. Ellen Guss, widow of the late Dr. Isaac Guss, of Philipsburg, died suddenly at that place on Monday afternoon. She was about to enter the home of H. D. Rumberger when she was seized with heart failure and expired on the front porch.

Maryland Republican.

Maryland elected a Republican Governor on Tuesday by a majority of from 3000 to 5000. Indications are that the assembly will be Republican.

PRISON COMMISSIONERS AGAIN INSPECT SITES

Made Trip Yesterday Through Penns. Valley Farms.

McBRIDE'S GAP TO-DAY

Warden John Francies Again Accompanies Commission to Bellefonte, as Does also Col. C. A. Rook, Editor of the Pittsburg "Dispatch."

Warden John Francies and the full commission of the Western Penitentiary yesterday made a return visit to Centre County to inspect suggested sites for the proposed new State penitentiary and farm prison. Col. C. A. Rook, editor of the Pittsburg "Dispatch" and his secretary, Robert S. Egan, accompanied the party.

The visitors arrived in Bellefonte early in the afternoon and at once proceeded in automobiles to Penns Valley, where one or more proposed sites were inspected. They returned to the Brockerhoff House in time for supper. Today will be devoted to a thorough inspection of the McBride's gap site, which, it is believed, will be the final choice of Governor Tener, Warden Francies and the penitentiary commissioners.

Speaker Cox Dead.

John F. Cox, speaker of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, died Monday morning at his home in Homestead after a brief illness from uraemic poisoning, from which he had been a sufferer for two years. Recently his health improved, but during Sunday night he became very ill, and his physicians were summoned. They remained with him until the end, but were unable to save him.

Mr. Cox was a native of Allegheny county, and was educated at Westminster college, New Wilmington, Pa., and at Mt. Union college, Alliance, Ohio. He was admitted to the Allegheny county bar in 1880, and served in the legislature in the sessions of 1885-87. He was returned as representative in 1909, and was elected speaker and again in 1911.

Governor Tener, in speaking of the dead speaker said: "During every moment of the last session he was a needle to the north; absolutely honest and fearless. His every act during the recent session of the legislature was prompted by a spirit of fairness, justice and for the best interest of every citizen of our commonwealth."

James Haines, aged 82 years, who lived on the divide, died on Saturday and was buried Monday at the Disciple burying ground at Marsh Creek. Rev. Mr. Faust officiated.

Birthday Anniversary Celebration.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Berry, near Salona, was the scene of a most delightful function on Wednesday evening, November 1, it being the occasion of Mr. Berry's 46th. birthday anniversary. Upward of 90 of his neighbors and friends were on hand to greet him, the celebration being so quietly arranged that he was given a complete surprise. During the evening delicious refreshments were served. Mr. Berry was the recipient of numerous and handsome gifts. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. George Berry, William and Glenn Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Kreamer and children, Mr. and Mrs. William Barner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weaver and children, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilt, Mr. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brungard and children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Brungard and children, James Brungard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Brungart, Mr. and Mrs. Bruner Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barner, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Brown, Mrs William Fischer and children, Miss McNaul, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Bower and family, Guy, Byron and Madeline Ricker, Miss Bressler, Dean Emert, Russell and Ruth Mayes, Lewis and Abner Brungard, of Salona; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bickel and daughter, of Lock Haven; Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Laubach, Miss Ida Bartholomew, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Packer and baby, Mill Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kunes, Mrs. Ambrose Ritter, Mrs. Matilda Dunkle, Jersey Shore; John Waite, Mrs. Ernest Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Berry, Beech Creek.

Minstrels Travel in Luxury.

Among the many stories sent out by energetic press agents during the season, are numerous ones alleged to have been told by some present star as to how the actor used to travel in the good old days of the stage coach and the wagon, of how they had to sometimes walk, with "grip" in hand, for miles, in order that they might fill a date and, of how they were sometimes compelled to sleep in the little "jerk-water" stations between trains. How vastly different the mode of traveling is at the present time, and the members of John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels get about the best there is in life on the road. John W. Vogel's handsome and spacious minstrel car "Florencia" will arrive in this city next Monday, November 13. It is said there is no other car in the world so constructed, roomy and comfortable in every respect, not an inch of space being wasted. Opening off the hallway, and so arranged that it may be thrown into a large room together with the observation end, are Manager Vogel's private state-rooms. Aside from the Commingler steam heating equipment, the hot and cold water plumbing, the private wardrobe and the portable center table with toilet combined, is the handsome folding bed and combination dresser, which was at one time the property of the late Edwin Booth, the famous tragedian, and presented to Mr. Vogel, by J. Monteith Jackson, the junior member of the firm of Jackson & Sharp, ship and car builders of Wilmington, Delaware. Next comes the grand saloon which is 24 feet in length and is used during the day by the members of the company as a parlor and at night is converted into a sleeping compartment. This is fitted with easy chairs, cozy corners, cushions and all other comforts.

Robbery at Lock Haven.

The Bellefonte police and local jewelers have been notified to be on the lookout for rings, necklaces and other valuable articles of jewelry stolen from the home of William F. Packer, in Lock Haven, on Tuesday evening of last week. From a description of the stolen goods, the thieves got away with articles valued at upward of $500. Mr. and Mrs. Packer were attending a social function on the evening of the robbery. They returned home to find the house lighted up but the blinds closely drawn. Once inside the house they quickly discovered the work of the thieves, who escaped without leaving anything to lead to their identity. The articles stolen include two diamond pins, opal pin, two gold bracelets, gold chain and locket, a small-linked gold chain, another small chain with diamond setting in locket, a revolver, children's saving bank with a sum of money in it and some other valuables.

Honey Canned by Bees.

C. C. Eckridge, of Falls of Rough, when coming to court one day last week, brought a jar of fine honey with him and left it at this office for a few hours. The jar of honey weighed 11½ pounds and was put in the jar by the bees. A hole was cut in the top of the hive and the glass jar placed over the hole and the little busy fellows very accurately filled the can.—Lock Haven Express.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Bellefonte Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Bellefonte. Follow the advice of a Bellefonte citizen and be cured yourself.

William E. Haines, Sunny Side St., Bellefonte, Pa., says. "The public statement that I gave in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago still holds good, as the cure they effected in my case has been permanent. In 1890 I began to suffer from a lameness in my back, accompanied by a dull, lingering ache in my loins that made it hard for me to attend to my work. I did not rest well and I was at a loss to know what to do. After tryinga number of remedies without being benefited, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box. They proved to be just the remedy I required, removing my trouble in a short time. I have been fully convinced of the curative powers of this preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Apple Recipe.

Apple and Chestnut Tarts—These are served in pumpkin cases and made as follows: Blanch chestnuts, then mash in a warm bowl. Sift together a quarter of a cupful of granulated sugar and two tablespoons of flour, add the chestnut meal and half a cupful of sweet milk; cook for five minutes in a double boiler. Beat stiff whites of two eggs and fold into the custard after removing from the fire. Half fill tart forms of puff paste with well sweetened apple sauce flavored with nutmeg; put a dab of whipped cream on each.

Apple and Nut Charlotte—Make this in a large dish or in individual molds: Blanch eight ounces of either hickory or walnut meats, dry for a day, then pound or break very fine. Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, add a pound of pulverized sugar, stir in the nuts and two tablespoons of orange flower water. Beat until well mixed, then drop in strips on buttered paper and bake in a slow oven. After this paste is set but still soft, stick nut meats along the top of strips. When the cakes are cold line a charlotte mold with them and fill the centre with this custard. Pare, core and slice six tart apples, stew in a cup of water; when soft, rub through a colander and re-beat. Stir in the well-beaten yolks of two eggs, sweeten to taste and cool. Whip to a froth the whites of the eggs mixed with one tablespoon of sugar and mix in the apple sauce. Pile this in the centre of the charlotte mold and top with whipped cream.

Coral Still in Vogue.

There has been such a fancy this year for coral and so many striped coral and white gowns have been made up that there is danger of the combination of color not lasting in fashion. It is, however, so extremely becoming to some young women that it will probably be worn through the autumn. In lightweight serge, in the soft silk cashmere, the combination is charming, and one model that has met with universal approval has the skirt slashed down the centre to show an underskirt of the same material or an inserted panel. The short coat fastens diagonally across the front, and has revers of black velvet. The elbow length sleeve has deep cuffs of the material finished with a fold of black velvet. The lines are quite close together, and are not very wide. This same model in black and white, and in the dark blue that is so fashionable this year with white, is also effective; but with black or blue the revers and the fold are of cerise velvet.—Harper's Bazar.

Saw-Toothed Weevils.

A very annoying insect has recently been found in large numbers of infesting different brands of prepared breakfast foods sold in this state, declares the current bulletins of the economic zoology division of the state department of agriculture. When they are once introduced into the pantry they become a constant source of trouble to the housekeeper.

Breakfast foods should be examined, and when found infested, fed to the pigs or returned to the dealer, says Professor H. A. Surface, state zoologist. He gives good advice on methods of exterminating these pests.

"The insect is called the saw-toothed grain weevil. It feeds in grain, flours, meal, breakfast foods, etc," he says. "The possibilities are that it was introduced into your pantry in a package of infested breakfast food.

"It is best to remove all the infested foods of this kind from the pantry and feed them to pigs or poultry."

Footwear Extravagance.

You cannot economize on your fee this season when they are so much in evidence, and, therefore every woman will have to take up the two subjects together—the kind of suit she buys and the kind of shoes she will get to go with the suit.

What is Your Family Worth?

If your family is worth the best you can afford in house and food and clothes, is it not worth the best reading as well? And the best reading—best for boys and girls, best for men and women—is to be found in The Youth's Companion.

Of stories alone The Companion will print nearly 300 in 1912. With all the rest of the paper thrown in, and counting the glorious long serial stories, they cost the subscriber less than a cent apiece. Moreover, you will look long before you will find stories so varied and interesting—stories of coolness in the face of peril, strange adventures with creatures of the forest and the sea, moving stories of life's obscure heroism, stories breezy with good-natured humor, quaint and curious character sketches.

Now is the time to subscribe, for you will receive free from the time your $1.75 is received all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1911, containing the opening chapters of Ralph D. Paine's great serial story of the Boxer rebellion, "The Cross and the Dragon." And there is the gift of The Companion Calendar for 1912, "On the New England Coast," lithographed in ten colors and gold. Only $1.75 now for the ten weekly issues, but on January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advaned to $2.00

Care of the Feet.

Feet should be aired daily. If they are kept shut up they will shrivel and grow fleshless and painful. It would be the same with the hand if it were encased, or with the arm. Sitting with the feet in a fur rug is advised by the English beauty instructors to keep the feet of the English women neat and trim. This warms them and airs them at the same time. It must be done for at least an hour a day.

No foot can be comfortable all the time unless one is the owner of a last or stretcher. This costs, maybe, $2. It can be put in the shoe and adjusted until it touches the uncomfortable spot. The leather of the shoe is now moistened and the shoe is left on the stretcher over night. The next day the bad spot in the shoe is gone.

Tight shoes are an abomination for three reasons, they make wrinkles in the face by causing distress. You can tell by the drawn look around the mouth when the shoe pinches. Tight shoes spoil the walk making a woman step awkwardly. Shoes that pinch in any one spot will deform the feet so that the next pair of shoes will have to be larger and so on until one cannot wear a shapely boot.

New Head for Princeton.

Dr. John M. T. Finney, of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, one of the most noted surgeons in the United States and one of the men recently removed from the school board by Mayor Preston, has been offered the presidency of Princeton University, in succession to Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. The formal election will take place in January, and it is understood he will accept. Doctor Finney is an alumnus of Princeton and a warm personal friend of Governor Woodrow Wilson, who himself is an alumnus of Johns Hopkins University. Until he has received official notification that he has been selected as president of Princeton Doctor Finney said he would make no announcements as to whether he would accept. The qualifications that have recommended Doctor Finney to the Princeton authorities for their next president are his executive ability, his deep knowledge of science in many branches, and his ripe experience as a man of public affairs.

Growth in Dairy Products.

A preliminary statement of the general results of the thirteenth census of establishments engaged in the production of butter, cheese and condensed milk was issued recently by Census Director Durand. It includes summaries comparing the general figures for 1904 and 1909, and showing the different products by kind and quantity, but does not embrace statistics of butter and cheese made on farms; these are not yet available for 1909. The value of products was $274,558,000 in 1909 and $168,183,000 in 1904, an increase of $106,375,000, or 63 per cent. The average per establishment was approximately $32,000 in 1909 and $19,000 in 1904. The value of products represents the product as actually turned out by the factories during the census years and does not necessarily have any relation to the amount of sales for that year.—Government Census Bulletin.

Unclaimed Letters.

A Mail Carrier's Load.

Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Duehren, Mail Carrier at Atchison, Kas., says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increased. Some time ago, I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Mince Meats.

New England Mince Meat—Cover four pounds of lean beef and two pounds of beef suet with boiling water and cook until tender. Cool in water in which they are cooked and finely chop the meat and add to it twice the quantity of finely chopped apples. The apples should be pared, cored and quartered, previous to the chopping. Then add three finely chopped quinces, three pounds of granulated sugar, two cups of molasses and two quarts of sweet cider. Take four pounds of seeded raisins, three pounds of currents, half a pound of citron and chop well together. Mix them with the ingredients formerly prepared. To this add one tablespoonful of cinnamon and mace, one tablespoonful of powdered cloves, two grated nutmegs and a teaspoonful of pepper. Mix this in with the already prepared edibles and salt to taste. Take the suet from the stock in which it and the meat were cooked and chop it fine. Add it and the stock to the prepared mince meat. Place it all upon the stove and cook slowly for two hours.

Mock Mince Meat—Take four ordinary soda crackers roll until fine and mix with one cup of molasses, half cup of lemon juice or vinegar, one-half cup of sugar and two well beaten eggs which have been beaten separately with one half cup of butter. Into this stir a cup of seeded and chopped raisins, a cup of currants, and cinnamon and nutmeg to taste. Mix together with the other ingredients and bake between crusts. The quantity here given is sufficient for two pies.

What They Ate.

Tobias Smollett wrote his "Humphrey Clinker" in 1771, the last year of his life, giving therein a spirited account of the society and customs then prevailing in London town. He exposed the iniquities practiced by the purveyors of provisions at that time. Oysters were "bloated" and "floated" then as now; veal was whitened by repeated bleedings of the live animal; greens were boiled with brass half pence to improve the color; the wine in common use was a "pernicious sophistication, balderdashed with cider, corn spirit and the juice of sloes," and other revelations not suited to repetition in this polite age indicated that almost every article of diet was profitably "treated" before it reached the ultimate consumer. That "bleached" flour is no new commodity was also shown, while Smollett's added comment furnishes excellent food for reflection:

"The bread I eat in London is a deleterious paste, mixed up with chalk, alum and bone ashes, insipid to the taste and destructive to the constitution. The good people are not ignorant of this adulteration, but they prefer it to wholesome bread because it is whiter than the meal of corn."—Washington Post.

Fires and Insurance.

The agent of a well known insurance company stood on the fringe of the crowd watching the firemen retiring from the scene of a small blaze in an uptown flathouse.

"I'll do business tomorrow morning," said he grimly, "and most of it will be with women who have 'forgotten' their insurance has run out. There's nothing like a blaze on the block to set thoughts in the direction of insurance. Last week a woman was waiting for me when I opened my office. Her husband had given her money to take out insurance weeks before, and she had spent it for a new hat. The night before a fire had broken out on the second flat above theirs, and, believe me, that woman must have suffered tortures until the fate of the house was settled. She paid the premium in small change, which I believe she took from a child's bank, rather than confess her neglect to her husband."—New York World.

The Poor.

We all love the poor. It would be entirely unnecessary, if not positively caddish, to say that we hate the poor. But there are two kinds of poor—the individual poor and the collective poor. It is not the individual poor that we love; it is the collective poor. It is not the poor that we know and see, but the poor that we do not know and have neither time nor inclination to look at. We are afraid if we see them we shall cease to love them. We never say, "God bless the iceman, or the coal heaver, or the motorman." For them we find our execrations for not contributing to our comfort just so and so and so.

It is with great fervor, however, that we can say, "God bless the poor," because the poor do not interfere with our comfort to the slightest degree.—Life.

FOLEY'S ORINO LAXATIVE

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE AND CONSTIPATION

There Was No Applause.

Just before the operation began the operating surgeon said to the students, "Now, gentlemen, no applause, if you please."

When he was convalescing the patient declared that that warning remained his most vivid impression of the ordeal.

"I wondered then how any human being could have the heart to applaud an act that had brought another face to face with death, but later I understood. On account of heart trouble they did not dare administer an anaesthetic, so I was conscious of everything, and in spite of the pain I realized that the surgeon was doing a mighty skillful piece of work. No wonder the students wanted to applaud. They were justified in it.

"'Some years ago they would have clapped the house down after an exhibition of that kind,' an old hospital attendant told me, 'but nowadays doctors discourage any such demonstration.'"—New York Sun.

Forgery In Excelsis.

The most remarkable literary forgery on record was perpetrated in 1870 on Michael Chasles, a French scientist of European reputation. Chasles, who was in his dotage, purchased within a few years from one Vrain-Lucas no fewer than 27,000 autographs. A. M. Broadley tells the story in his "Chats on Autographs:" "Beginning with a supposed correspondence between the youthful Newton and Pascal, Vrain-Lucas proceeded to fabricate letters of Rabelais, Montesquieu and La Bruyere. Before he had finished M. Chasles became the possessor of letters in French, and written on paper made in France, of Julius Caesar, Cleopatra, Mary Magdalene and even of Lazarus after his resurrection." Vrain-Lucas was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and among other forged manuscripts from his pen there were produced in court letters from Alexander the Great, Herod, Pompey, Judas Iscariot, Sappho, Pontius Pilate and Joan of Arc!

The Llama With a Saddle.

In his native country the llama is trained as a beast of burden, and in this capacity is very useful for, hard and wiry by nature, he can carry as much as a 160 pounds. As a mount, too, he is quite easy to train. Indeed, both the llama and the oneiko take to the saddle as to the manner born when once they have assured themselves that their teacher wishes them well. Their most striking peculiarity as saddle animals, however, is a strong objection to having their heads in any way pulled about by their riders. So long as their mouths are left alone they will amble along quite contentedly at a fair rate of speed, but if they are ridden by some one with a heavy hand they show a tendency to stop at once, whipping round in a manner distinctly disconcerting to those who do not quite realize what is going to happen.—Wide World Magazine.

Turn About.

In a certain southern city the colored servants, as a rule, go to their own homes at night. The cook in the family of a clergyman not only does this, but of late has arrived at the rectory too late to cook breakfast. Hence her mistress lately told her that for each breakfast missed there would be a reduction in her weekly wages. Dinah passively assented to this, but next day the mistress heard the maid next door say to her:

"'Pears to me you get to work mighty late."

"I gets to work when I gets ready," was the reply.

"How does you manage about de brekfus?"

"Oh, I pays de missus to cook de brekfus.'"—Housekeeper.

A Schoolboy's Story of Jonah.

A school board boy, competing for one of the Peek prizes, evolved this confusion of widely different events. He had to write a short biography of Jonah, and he produced the following: "He was the father of Lot and had two wives. One was called Ishmale and the other Hagher. He kept one at home and turned the other into the dessert, when she became a pillow of salt in the daytime and a pillow of fire at night."—From Wheatley's "Literary Blunders."

Her Diplomacy.

"You could make my future brighter," he said, looking at her longingly.

"I could say the same," she replied, looking down.

"How?" he asked eagerly.

"Well, an engagement ring with a diamond in it would help some," she admitted.—Boston Herald.

What She Did Wish.

"Well, why don't you say you wish you were a man?" asked Mr. Potts during a little discussion he was having with his spouse about some matters of domestic management.

"Because I don't wish anything of the sort," she retorted; "I only wish you were one!"

Quick Both Ways.

A Scotch laird once said to his servant, John, who had complained of his temper, "I am sure, John, it is nae suner on than it's off."

"Aye," said John; "but, laird, it's nae suner off than it's on."

Not at All Necessary.

"What was the cause of the quarrel with your husband?"

"I want you to understand, judge, that when we want to fight we don't have to have a cause."—New York Press.

A sip is the most that mortals are permitted from any goblet of delight.—Alcott.

Slaves of the Russian Passport.

A peasant leaves his home to seek for work as a field laborer wherever he can find work to do, and, like every Russian, male and female, he takes his passport with him, which is quite as much a part of him as his soul is. It is always a half yearly passport, which he must renew at the end of six months, sending it home in a registered letter to an official at his native place and inclosing the legal fee and something over for the trouble. The time of renewal draws near; the workman gets a demand for a new passport. Through official neglect or other reason the passport fails to come in time. The honest workingman, who is earning his bread in the sweat of his brow and by the practice perhaps of exceptional sobriety is trying to earn a pittance for his family, is arrested suddenly and sent home—that is, is flung into a forwarding prison, whence he emerges to join a convict party, which contain the cream of criminality, and is made to suffer torments before he gets home. When he arrives he gets his passport and is a free agent—once more a loyal subject.—E. B. Lanin.

Fixing Up the Horse.

If you had a highly intelligent thoroughbred horse to which you were greatly attached, what would you do for him in order to bring him to the highest point of efficiency?

Would you teach him, at great inconvenience and after many repetitions, to smoke from ten to fifteen cigars a day, and would you mix with his oats all the way from a pint to a quart of alcohol? Would you re-enforce this by overloading his stomach with highly spiced food and add all the narcotics that were in the market, such as tea, coffee, etc.? Would you keep him in a heated stable without any fresh air, make him sit up at all hours of the night and permit all the veterinarians in the neighborhood to hold consultations and operate upon him as often as they needed the money?

And if you did all this, what sort of a race would you expect that horse to win?—Life.

Ancient Football.

Philip Stubbes wrote in 1583 in his book on "The Anatomie of Abuses:"

"For as concerning football I protest unto you it may rather be called a freendly kinde of fight than a play of recreation; a bloody and murthering practice than a felowly sporte of pastyme. For dooth not every one lye in waight for his Adverserie, seeking to overthrow him and to picke him on his nose, though it be on hard stones, so that by this meanes sometimes their necks are broken, sometimes their backs, sometimes their legs, sometimes their arms, sometimes one part thrust out of joynt, sometimes another; sometimes the noses gush out with blood, sometimes their eyes start out—fighting, brawling, contention, quarrel picking, murther, homicide and great effusion of blood, as experience dayly teacheth."

Relics of the Incas.

The Inca period has left as remarkable traces, especially in the magnificent roads. Broad, beautiful turnpikes, now only partially preserved, run for a distance of over 2,000 miles from the coast to the plateau and the foot of the highest peaks. We marvel at the skill of the Inca engineers, especially in the magnificent stairways hewn in the rock, in the filling up of deep ravines, in the paving with ponderous flags. In several places have been found the remains of a former asphalt covering to these roads. At certain intervals are found the ruins of custom houses and laid out grounds and fortifications, of which the most interesting specimen is the fortress of Cuzco, built about the year 1000, and plundered and destroyed by Pizarro in 1543.—Century Path.

The Club.

An exclusive dining society in London is the one bearing the arrogant title the Club, which since its foundation has been limited to thirty-five members. Johnson, Burke, Reynolds and Goldsmith were among the original members. Garrick and Boswell joined in 1773 and Gibbon and Fox in 1774. Of the eighteen premiers in the nineteenth century nine were members of the club, Fox, Liverpool, Canning, Russell, Aberdeen, Gladstone, Salisbury, Lord Rosebery and Mr. Balfour.—London Spectator.

The Orator's Fate.

"Some orators," said Senator Sorghum reflectively, "make me think of our parrot."

"The one whose head you chopped off?"

"Yes. He had to take all the blame for what somebody else insisted on his saying."—Washington Star.

Asking Too Much.

"My dear," said Mr. Clarkson, "I don't want you to think I have any desire to criticise you for the way you manage, but really we must try to live within our income."

"Within our income? Goodness! And be regarded by everybody in our set as eccentric?"—Judge.

Doubled Her Capacity.

"Mrs. Garber fell downstairs and bit her tongue in two."

"I feel sorry for her husband. She was a terror when she had only one tongue."

She Had Courage.

A self possessed young woman who knew no French strolled into one of the larger downtown cafes. She spoke to the waiter in that decisive tone which distinguishes the initiated and glanced over the French bill of fare with the nonchalant air of a Parisienne.

"I'll have," she began firmly as she plunged into the sea of French dishes—"I'll have—let me see. Oh, yes, I'll have some bisque tortoni, a sultana roll, pommes de terre and a little of that fromage. And, garcon, you might as well bring me a cup of coffee."

The waiter gasped. He started to speak, but the young woman froze him with one of those icy stares peculiar to the thoroughly sophisticated.

And the order arrived—two kinds of ices, boiled potatoes and a piece of cheese. But she ate it as if she had been used to that sort of diet all her life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stories on Doctors.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle told several good stories of old fashioned practitioners he knew. There was one man, he said, who never used to wash out the half emptied bottles returned to him, but emptied them into one huge jar, from which he dispensed this mixture of medicines to his more obscure patients. "It is like grapeshot," he said; "one of them is sure to hit." There was another man who used to say, "When my patients are alive I don't know what is the matter with them and when they die I don't know whether they are dead." That was like the medical man who said to a lady whose husband he had been attending, "Madam, I have a very strong belief that your husband is dead, but if it is your wish I have no objection to a consultation."

Cute Little Girl.

One day while Katherine's mother was ill a cup of beef tea was prepared for her, but Katherine fancied it and drank almost all of it. Her father was about to scold her when her mother said:

"Never mind; it does me just as much good to see her drink it."

Shortly after this a dose of castor oil was prepared for Katherine, and she poured it into her doll's mouth.

"Why Katherine," said her astonished mother, "what did you do that for?"

"That's all right," Katherine replied, "it will do me just as much good if she drinks it."—Boston Herald.

The Danger of Criticism.

If you simply cannot help criticising at least be careful in selecting your victim.

A magazine editor to whom O. Henry had promised a story many times without delivering it sat down one day and wrote him thus:

"My Dear O. Henry—If I do not receive that story from you by noon today I am going to put on my No. 11 shoes and come down and kick you down your own stairs. I never fail to keep my promises."

Whereupon O. Henry replied:

"I, too, would keep my promises if I could do all my work with my feet."—Chicago Tribune.

The Battle of a Week.

The battle of a week was the great conflict at Tours in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens, A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000, and the historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so decisive.

In the Mining Business.

"I think you said, Rastus, that you had a brother in the mining business in the west?"

"Yeh, boss, that's right."

"What kind of mining—gold mining, silver mining, copper mining?"

"No, sah, none o' those; calcimining."—Everybody's.

His Luxurious Pillow.

"When sleeping cars first came in," said a railroad man, "the bedclothes in the berths were very scanty. On one of these early cars one night after everybody had turned in and the lights were low a loud voice called from an upper berth:

"'Porter, got a corkscrew?'

"The porter came hurrying down the aisle.

"'Boss,' he said in a scandalized tone, 'we don't allow no drinkin' in the berths. It's against the rules.'

"'Oh, it ain't that, porter,' the voice answered. 'I just want to dig out a pillow that's sort of worked its way into my ear.'"

Her Evidence.

"I had a colored woman before me as a complaining witness," said a criminal court judge. "She had a man held for trial by a city magistrate on the charge that he had attacked her with a pair of scissors. 'He mout' near gouge mah eye out, jedge,' she said to me. 'Jes' come at me lak a lion, he did, a-roarin', suh. He poke me in de face wiv dem scissors, jedge, not once, but for four or five times. He jes' cut up my face lak it was a yahd of ribbon, jedge. The magistrate what held him to dis heah court says he nevah did hear tell of no more dangerous man.'

"Well, I looked her over. She had a wide, smooth, yellow face that didn't have a mark on it. I told her to repeat her story, and she went all over it again, telling how the man had slashed her face with that pair of scissors.

"'But, madam,' I said, 'there isn't a mark on your face.'

"'Marks!' said she indignantly. 'Marks! What I care for marks, less me ask you dat? I got witnesses, I tell you.'"—New York Cor. Cincinnati Times-Star.

The First Automobilist.

Nicholas Joseph Cugnot was the first automobilist. Many years before Stephenson had introduced his railway locomotive Cugnot, who was a military engineer, had made a locomotive for roads. His locomotive has been piously preserved at the Conservatoire des Arts et Metiers. Cugnot died in 1804. His lot was not that of many geniuses. He did not die in want. Napoleon had secured him a pension of 1,000 francs—passing rich on $200 a year. In this respect the premier consul showed more enlightenment than he did in regard to Fulton of steamboat fame, whom he considered—it is distressing to write—an adventurer. Cugnot's carriage was built to transport arms and he had designed a service gun. These achievements alone would be a passport to Napoleon's favor.—London Globe.

LICKED.

The Republicans of Centre County on Tuesday gave themselves the most thorough licking they have received in many a day. Many Republicans failed to go to the polls and vote. Some others went to the polls and voted the whole or a part of the Democratic ticket.

The Democrats in the county got out their vote and voted it for the Democratic ticket. In brief, the Democrats were on their toes from the start and helped along what turned out to be a veritable landslide for the greater part of the Democratic ticket. The Republicans were apparently indifferent to party success. The result was only what naturally follows in such cases—a good licking.

The one thing most regretted is that a lot of good men on the Republican ticket went down to an underserved defeat. They made a good fight and deserved a better reward at the hands of their party. However, the defeated candidates and this newspaper are good losers and we take off our hat to the enemy on the broad ground that results speak for themselves. We extend congratulations to the victors on the manly fight they put up.

Democratic majories of 1000 and over in Centre County in this year of our Lord, 1911, should be sufficient to suggest to every Republican that he has to some extent at least been asleep at the switch.

Death of John M. Wian.

In the death of John M. Wian, which occurred at Harrisburg, Wednesday evening, November 1st., the Wian family sustains it first loss by death in fifty-seven years, in a family of eleven children. Brief mention was made of his death in last week's issue, but since then we have learned further particulars. Mr. Wian, who was a single man, lived alone in bachelor quarters and heated his room by a small gas stove. It is supposed that while sitting in a chair asleep by the stove, he accidentally set his foot against the stove, turned on the gas jets, the stove not being lighted at the time, and death resulted from the fumes of the escaping gas. The Coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death by asphyxiation.

The remains were brought to Bellefonte on Thursday evening and taken to the home of his brother, L. H. Wian, on East High Street, where funeral, services were held Thursday morning. Interment was held in the Union cemetery.

The deceased was born at Pleasant Gap and was aged 47 years. He was the son of Peter and Elizabeth Wian. Surviving him are his aged mother, and the following brothers and sisters: L. H. and James, of Bellefonte; George, of South Bethlehem; Mrs. Kate Brunner, Mrs. Harry Gardner and Emma, of Altoona; Mrs. Anna Derr, of Philipsburg; Lawrence, of Atlantic City; Mrs. William Gehret and Mrs. Joseph McCulley, of Bellefonte.

Parent-Teachers Meeting.

A social meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association was held in the High School auditorium on Monday evening, last, and notwithstanding the inclement weather fully 125 parents, teachers and friends were in attendance. The secretary, Mrs. John S. Walker, gave an interesting report of the twelfth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Association, at Williamsport, October 5, 6 and 7. The president, Mrs. Ambrose M. Schmidt, spoke words of welcome and made a brief statement of the object sought to be attained by this association. Music was furnished on the violin and piano by master Brandon and his sister. Vocal selections were sung by the Misses Shuey, Smith, Jenkins and Williams, of the High School. After the regular program had been rendered, the president invited the members and guests to the large reception hall, where home-made ice cream and cake were served. The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, December 12, when Mrs. G. G. Pond, of State College, will give a talk on juvenile literature.

OLD SOLDIER DEAD

D. H. Young, Civil War Veteran, Passed Away at Markelsburg.

Another old veteran answered the last roll call when on Thursday, last, at midnight, D. H. Young passed away after a brief illness at his late home at Markelsburg. David Henry Young was born January 9, 1836, on the farm now owned and occupied by J. Will Kepler and was a son of the late Henry and Catherine Young, pioneer settlers of the Glades. He was the last surviving member of his father's family. During his early life the summer found him working on the farm, and in the winter he attended the public schools. This education, with several terms at the old Pine Grove Mills Academy, fitted him to teach when he was but seventeen years of age. He taught for six successive terms at Centre Furnace, where among his pupils were the Thompsons, William and James I. Later he taught in the old stone school house at Pine Grove Mills, where the writer was one of his pupils.

At the breaking out of the rebellion he enlisted in Company H, 148th. Penna. Vols., Colonel Beaver's regiment, and was as brave a soldier as ever carried a gun. At the battle of the Wilderness he was seriously wounded through the hip and lay helpless on the battlefield that was on fire and on which thousands perished in the flames. During his boyhood days he had fought fire in the barrens at home and with rare presence of mind he found a match in his pocket and lighted the leaves about him on the battle field. With the aid of leaves and brush he fired a cleared space and then rolled over and over on it as the angry flames came up and passed about him. His life was spared and he eventually returned home.

After the close of the war he married Miss Catherine Carper, of near Benore, and their union was blessed with two daughters, Mary and Catherine, and three sons, William, Charles and Elmer. His entire life was that of a successful farmer and stock raiser in Ferguson township, where he filled numerous local offices with fidelity and trust. Twenty-five years ago he removed to Stone valley onto the McFarland farm. Ten years ago he bought a farm near Markelsburg and there continued farming until several years ago when he gave up the farm to his sons and with his wife returned to town for a well earned rest. His last year was devoted chiefly to visiting friends in Centre County, also in Ohio.

He was a consistent member of the Lutheran church and was active as a Sunday school teacher. He was especially well known among the younger set and also in educational circles. He was a most zealous granger and a charter member of Washington Grange, also a past-master and for many years was its secretary. His last visit was to Ohio, where he visited the Dannley brothers. He seemed to enjoy his trip so much, but soon after his return home he was stricken down. His legion of friends here will be sorry to learn of his death. Burial was made on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at Markelsburg, the services being largely attended.

Look Out for This Fellow.

The Altoona police authorities have unearthed a new rooming house swindle through its being worked in that city during the latter part of last week. They are looking for a young man passing himself off under the name of Dr. James Davis, aged about 25 years, six feet tall and wearing a black long coat and a natty light cap, desirous of obtaining a room with a private family. He worked his scheme successfully and likely left the city with a few dollars to the good.

Davis's scheme was to apply at some private residence for a room and if accommodated offer to pay for it a month in advance with a check for a few dollars over the amount of the rent and then make his get-away. To make his actions more convincing on renting the room he would use a telephone, if there was one in the house, and call up some baggage express and order his trunks brought to the house from the Colonnade hotel. He worked this scheme on Mrs. Chamberlain, of 821 Seventh avenue, last Saturday, gave her a worthless check for $15 in payment for a $12 room but only received $1.25 in change. He sent for his trunks but they never came and the man never came back. The police were notified, ascertained that Dr. Davis was unknown at the Colonnade and had no trunks there and that he had worked the same game on others in the city. An effort was made to locate and arrest him but knowing that the working of such a scheme was good for only a day or two in a city he likely lit out.

EVAN M. VALENTINE DEAD

Former Resident of Bellefonte Passed Away at Philadelphia.

Evan M. Valentine died at his late home in Germantown, Philadelphia, on Saturday, November 4th., after a lingering illness, and was buried in Ivy Hill cemetery beside his wife, Mary Taylor Valentine, who preceded him to the grave sixteen years ago.

Mr. Valentine was born at the "Forge House," nearby Bellefonte, September 29, 1839, and was the son of Abram Sharpless Valentine, one of the original Valentines who came to this section from Chester County in 1815. He was educated at the Bellefonte Academy and started out as a civil engineer and assisted in the surveys for the old Lewisburg Centre & Spruce Creek Railroad, also the old Bellefonte & Snow Shoe Railroad. In the Civil war he enlisted in Captain H. N. McAllister's Twenty-third Regiment, and served as sergeant. About 1871 he, with his brothers Abram and Harry C. Valentine, built and operated a rolling mill in Bellefonte under the name of the Bellefonte Iron Co., which later was removed to Williamsport and with increased capital and enlarged capacity was operated there as the Valentine Iron Company and now is the Williamsport Nail Company. In the late Seventies Mr. Valentine removed with his family to Philadelphia and engaged in the brokerage business, handling among other products much of the iron produced by the charcoal furnaces here.

Surviving the deceased are two sons, Harry S. and Abram S. Valentine, both of Philadelphia, and his three sisters, Mrs. Rebecca V. Pugh, Clara and Mary Valentine, and also one brother, Harry C. Valentine, all of Bellefonte.

He was a man of strict integrity, courteous and genial in his manner, and his death will be regretted by many in Bellefonte to whom he was closely related by blood.

MICHAEL BREON DEAD

Second Oldest Resident of Clearfield County—Born in Centre County.

Michael Breon, one of the oldest except one resident of Clearfield county, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Johnson Hamilton, in Luthersburg on October 26, in his 93rd year. Death was caused by the decline of old age combined with partial paralysis and came after a steady ebbing of vitality for several months back.

The deceased had been a resident of Clearfield county 77 years, moving to Luthersburg from his birthplace in Centre county, when he was sixteen years of age. Mrs. Lydia Breon, of DuBois, is a daughter, while Street Commissioner, E. W. Breon, Frank Breon, Mrs. G. W. Gillung and George Hamilton, and Mrs. Wm Ditchburn, of that town, are grand children. The funeral took place on Saturday and was largely attended.

In 1840 he was married to Miss Dunlap. Several children sprung from the union, three of whom survive. The deceased's wife preceded him to the grave by 44 years, dying in 1866.

During his earlier years he followed the lumbering business and later turned to farming. Since the death of his wife he had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Johnson Hamilton. Mrs. George Moorehead, of Brownsville, deceased. Mrs. A. M. Brauker, Luthersburg, and Walter Breon, of Casper, Wyoming, are the other surviving children. Sixteen grand-children and thirty-two great-grand children are living descendants of the deceased.

Michael Breon was a citizen of sterling worth. During his many years in Clearfield he had become very well known and washeld in the highest respect and esteem by legions of friends.

Fielding at Lisbon.

Lisbon contains the grave of Henry Fielding. It was on Oct. 4, 1754, that Fielding died in the Portuguese capital, and it was in 1830 that his tomb was erected in the English cemetery. And Fielding didn't like Lisbon. "As the houses, convents, churches, etc., are large," he wrote, "and all built with white stone, they look beautiful at a distance, but as you approach nearer and find them to want every kind of ornament all idea of beauty vanishes at once." At that time a voyage to Lisbon was an undertaking not lightly to be contemplated. It took Fielding exactly fifty days of foul weather.—St. James' Gazette.

"Do as Rome Does."

The saying "Do as Rome does" originated with St. Ambrose in the fourth century. It arose from a diversity of the observance of Saturday. The Milanese made it a feast, the Romans a fast. St. Ambrose, being asked what should be done in such a case, replied: "In matters of little consequence it is better to be guided by the general usage. When I am at Milan I do not fast on Saturday, but when I am at Rome I do as they do in Rome."

Shot at Shakespeare.

"Shakespeare was a smart man," said Si Simlin, "but there was times when he didn't hit it right."

"For instance?"

"That remark about 'rather bear the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of.' If that was the case there wouldn't be no hoss trades."—Washington Star.

Coffee and Fatigue.

The question is often asked, What will relieve fatigue more quickly than anything else? Clerks in stores and men generally, as well as women shoppers, become at times very tired. Fortunately the British army has thrashed the question out and tried every kind of decoction that could be thought of, and we may profit by its experience. It awards the palm to coffee and declares it has neither superior nor equal for this purpose.—Indianapolis News.

Growing Pains.

Never ignore "growing pains." Many people seem to think they are perfectly natural and, in fact, that they are a necessary part of growth. As a matter of fact, they are sometimes an indication of a strong tendency to rheumatism, and a child who complains of them should wear wool next the skin always, though lighter, of course, in summer than in winter, and be properly treated by a doctor.

Mrs. Catherine Randolph Dead.

Catherine, relict of William Randolph, died at 11.30 o'clock on Thursday night of last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Jacobs, at Enosville. She was about 90 years of age. Her death was due to a stroke of paralysis. Deceased was a daughter of the late James Alexander, an early settler in the east end of Stone valley who often heard the Indian war whoop about Fort McElavey. She made frequent visits to Pine Grove Mills and made many warm friends while staying at the St. Elmo Hotel, at that place and conducted by her son, Reed. She is survived by two daughters and two sons. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal church and had a kind, motherly heart and a cheery smile for everybody. Funeral services were held on Monday, burial being made at 10 o'clock by the side of her husband who died twelve years ago, in the Enosvills cemetery.

John Schenck was a passenger east one day last week.

Irvin Gray, of Julian, was a caller in town last week.

Charles Woodward made a short visit home last week.

J. Will Mayes was a business visitor in Bellefonte last week.

H. Walter Holter visited relatives in Unionville on Sunday.

Dr. W. J. Kurtz was a business visitor to Pittsburg last week.

May Allison, of Nittany, was a Howard visitor on Tuesday.

P. E. Thomas was a business visitor in Tyrone on Thursday.

C. C. Lucas and wife were visitors in Williamsport last week.

Joseph Gardner moved from this place to Altoona on Tuesday.

William Confer and family were visitors in Lock Haven on Tuesday.

William Quay was a business visitor at the Clinton county seat on Tuesday.

Rudolph Pletcher was a business visitor in Tyrone the fore part of the week.

A series of special revival meetings are now being held in the Fairview Evangelical church.

Mrs. Clara Adams, of Milesburg, was a Sunday visitor with her aunt, Mrs. Katherine McKinney.

Friends of Mrs. H. T. Lucas remembered her on her 77th birthday with a shower of post cards.

Ellis Ertel, of Pittsburg, and Miles Ertel, of Philadelphia, are home for a visit with their parents.

Charles and Al. Confer, who have been painting at Niagara Falls, are home for a two weeks vacation.

Miss Mable Cummings left last Wednesday for Niagara Falls, being called there by the illness of her sister.

Eugene Pletcher is home from Philadelphia to spend a few days trying to shoot a few of the native cottontails.

Ward Thompson, of Renovo, arrived in town Tuesday morning with his dogs and will spend a few days here hunting.

Prof. F. M. Pletcher and family were guests Sunday at the home of his father, a wild turkey dinner being the feature of the day.

A. A. Pletcher and wife arrived home Monday evening from Washington, D. C., where they spent a brief honeymoon with his brother.

A. C. Longee, a former Howard boy who conducts the restaurant at Lewistown Junction, visited his mother here on Saturday and Sunday.

J. Edward Taylor, principal of the Loganton schools, spent Sunday with his parents, going to Lock Haven on Monday to attend institute.

Mrs. Charles Bowes has gone to Mackeyville to visit her brother, Al. McKibben, and wife, the latter having been ill, but now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Thompson, Huber Hannon, Herbert Wyland, Ed. and Al. Confer and Mrs. Henry Confer were visitors in Bellefonte on Monday.

Misses Emma and Edith Weber spent Saturday and Sunday in Lock Haven as guests of their friend Miss Jobson, who gave a party on Saturday evening.

W. F. Smith, of the township, entertained his mother for a few days this week. She has been making her home with her son John at Mechanicsburg.

Will Askey, of Laurelton, brought the remains of his son Nelson to Eagleville for burial. He was aged about twenty years and death was due to typhoid fever.

The buildings of the Howard Mattress Company are being roofed this week by Contractor H. C. Holter, the Cortright shingle, for which he is agent, being used.

Alvie B. Weirick, of Altoona, was a Sunday visitor at the home of his parents. Prof. J. C. Weirick, of Lock Haven, was also a guest under the parental roof.

Bernard Long and Edward Bathurst, who spent the opening of the hunting season at New Millport, succeeded in shooting thirty rabbits. John Kelly, Ellis Pletcher and Jacob Robb each captured a turkey in this vicinity. Others succeeded in bagging a smaller number of rabbits.

Samuel B. Leathers, aged 86; Joseph Packer, aged 86; Peter Robb, aged 82, all of the township, and Samuel F. Kline, aged 91, of the borough, were four of our venerable residents who have passed through many campaigns and voted for numerous candidates. They did not fail to turn out on Tuesday to cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice.

Our citizens were greatly surprised last Wednesday morning when they saw the work of the Hallowe'en party. It was thought that the masquerading, etc., had ended the evening's fun and that movable property would not be disturbed as has been the custom in years past. When all seemed quiet for the night and our good people had gone to their rest the depradations were renewed. The boys secured a number of vehicles and other portable property and arranged a large stockade in the diamond. Then they secured cows belonging to Dr. Kurtz and S. H. Pletcher and placed them therein.

Death of Nelson Askey.

Nelson Askey, a former Centre Countian, died at the home of his parents at Laurelton, Pa., on Saturday of typhoid fever, aged twenty-four years. He was a son of William Askey, who conducts a hotel at Laurelton, and was a very exemplary young man. The funeral party passed through Bellefonte Monday morning, enroute to Eagleville, where the funeral took place.

Woman loves a clear, rosy complexion. Burdock Blood Bitters purifies the blood, clears the skin, restores ruddy, sound health.

Pine Grove Mills.

A. B. Musser, a victim from fever, is on a fair way to recovery.

A. J. Tate, William B. Ward and Charley Goss came home to vote.

Mrs. J. I. Markel, who has been ill for many weeks, is slowly recovering.

Rev. S. J. Pittinger spent several days among friends in Stone valley.

Frank and Claude Williams spent Sunday with their brother Ray at Graysville.

Frank Weiland and family spent the Sabbath at the Squire Miller home in the Glades.

Mrs. Belle Kimport is quite ill at her home at State College, suffering from a general breakdown.

The public sale of J. B. Lytle's on Saturday was high as the $55 mark. The sale netted about $360.

Mrs. Samuel Grenoble and Mr. H. A. Elder attended the David Young funeral at Markelsburg on Sunday.

Rev. David Young Brouse, of WarriorsMark, was a welcome visitor at his mother's home here this week.

Farmer Lloyd Frank is shy a splendid horse whose death was caused by a rusty nail in the foot, developing tetanus.

After a two days' hunt along Stone mountain, J. W. and Harry Sunday came in with 36 birds and 20 of the frisky tribe.

Jacob Harpster, our assessor, is on his rounds, tallying the dogs and stock in general. He is the right man in the right place.

George Swabb, on the Branch, is short a cow that died quite suddenly on Monday morning of some unknown cause. It was sick but a short time.

William L. Thomas, who took seriously ill while at the D. W. Thomas home last week, has recovered so as to be able to be removed to his home at Shingletown on Saturday.

Bellie Hoover, with her two interesting youngsters, came up from the southland last week to see her mother, who has been ill all summer, but who is somewhat improved now.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Dannley, representative citizens of Madina, Ohio, came for a two weeks stay with the former's aged mother and also to see as many Centre Countians as possible.

Everybody is taking off their cateys to little Johnnie Moore, a lad of nine summers who came in the first day of the hunting season dragging a 22 pound gobbler which he shot on the top of old Tussey mountain. When on his shoulder the turkey's head dragged on the ground, and as the youngster was obliged to trail it most of the way home he was about played out by the time he arrived there. Among those who came in with turkeys were Alfred Davis, two; George Rossman, two; Walter Weaver, Frank Davis, R. G. Goheen, John Calver, Owen Peterson, one, each. Wilson Heney and sons came in with 25 birds to their credit. The Krebs crew had a dozen rabits. Ed. Isenberg, John Sasserman and J. H. Meyers each made a good haul.

Woodward.

Clair Kreamer, who is attending Pierce's Business College at Philadelphia, spent a few days last week with his father.

Prof. Edgar Stover, wife and daughter, Grace, left for Plainfield, N. J., Tuesday morning, at which place he will teach in the High School.

Miss Ida VonNeida and Mrs. Miller and daughter, Miss Margaret, from Laurelton, were visitors at the home of Abraham Treaster on Sunday.

James Guisewite and wife, of this place, and George Guisewite and wife, of Fiedler, spent the greater part of last week with their many friends in Sugar Valley.

Last Tuesday Mrs. Chas. Musser was taken to the Bellefonte hospital where she underwent an operation. Her many friends will be glad to hear that she is getting along nicely.

J. L. Kreamer and wife spent several days this week with their daughter, Mrs. Clayton Boob, of Mifflinburg. While away Floyd Guisewite and wife attended to the household duties.

Rev. Wentz, presiding elder of the Evangelical Association from Allentown, preached a very interesting sermon to a large congregation Sunday evening. After the sermon "The Lord's Supper" was observed.

Amon Mingle, who is employed by the Logan Coal Co., at Carroltown, Pa., returned to his father's home quite ill one day last week. He is somewhat better but not able to be around. He was accompanied by his wife and little daughter, Phyllis.

Peru.

Miss Tovola Reish, of Pheasant Gap, is employed at the home of Henry Shuey.

Miss Virgie Markel, who has spent the summer with the Rishels, has returned home for the winter.

John Houser, of State College, spent Wednesday of last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Houser.

Miss Gummo has placed in the Peru school an organ and now she will furnish music for the pupils.

Charles Hickey, with his faithful dog, Ned, came down from Altoona on a little hunting expedition. He is putting up at A. R. Houser's.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ammerman, of this place, were called on Sunday to the bedside of their son-in-law, Corman Yearick, who has been lying at the point of death.

William Noll, accompanied by Miss Gummo, departed for Bellefonte on Saturday evening, and just when they arrived at the diamond the machine decided to remain there for a while, so Billy traded for one that would go.

Unionville.

We are glad to note that Edward Morrison is somewhat improved.

The revival meeting started on Sunday evening in the M. E. church.

Joseph Barton, of Confluence, Pa., came home to vote and spend a few days with his many friends here.

Edward Morrison killed two fine porkers on Tuesday, election day, one weighing 320 and the other 360 pounds.

Merrill Harper and his friend, Mr. Fisher, of Sheridanville, are here after the cotton-tails. Merrill has 3 fine hounds.

Mrs. William Neiman, who has been seriously ill with pleuro pneumonia, we are glad to note, has taken a turn for the better.

H. G. Musser has moved from Miss Henshie's house on Chestnut Street to the property vacated by Thomas Lambert, on Allegheny Street.

Mrs. H. M. Stere and children, after a very delightful trip of ten days to Bloomsburg and Buckhorn, where she visited Rev. V. L. Wagner and wife, returned home on Monday.

Miss Cora Hoover and Joseph Resides, the sly creatures, slipped off to Milesburg on last Wednesday and were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. We wish the young couple many happy and prosperous days.

James B. Stere and J. H. Fisher departed on Monday for the head of Bush Hollow, where they expect to camp for at least ten days. Jim and Harold killed 9 rabbits on the first day till 10 o'clock. The above named parties, members of the Unionville Kennell Club, have 5 fine pups which will be for sale as soon as they are old enough. They are full-blooded English beegle, the finest grown.

Our town has been crowded with hunters ever since the hunting season opened. Men of all vocations in life and from all parts of the State are here. Here is a partial list of lucky ones: Dr. C. A. VanValin, 1 turkey; Howard Musser, of Bellwood, 1 turkey; Rev. Calvin Davidson, Pittsburg, 2 turkeys; Chas. Bruss, 1 turkey; Ralph Holt, 1 turkey; William Bruss, 1 turkey; Harry Fry, of Williamsport, 2 turkeys.

Two young men from Julian came to our town the other day and tried to tell our fellows how to vote. Political arguments generally get pretty warm and this one was getting to about the boiling point when one of these young men from Julian charged one of our citizens with voting the Democratic ticket. Our friend could not swallow this and at once invited the Julianers outside to settle things. Everything looked prosperous for a large fight, but the Julianers evidently didn't like the looks of the crowd and thought twice before they hit anybody. Fortunately everything blew over and no blood was spilled.

We were very much favored by a visit of the Welsh singers, of Johnstown, Pa., under the direction of John P. Brugger on Saturday evening. They arrived and after a rehearsal at the residence of Daniel Buck proceeded to the home of Mrs. Samuel Brugger, where they made the old mansion ring with their songs. They were in attendance at the Sunday morning service of the M. E. church, taking the place of the choir. A large audience greeted them and everybody was delighted. Good music is always appreciated, and this choir of eight men were exceptionally fine. We hope to see them again and give us more of it.

Mt. Eagle.

John Robinson, Sr., made a business trip to Snow Shoe on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Barger and children spent Sunday with the former's parents at Curtin.

Jesse Leathers, of Northumberland, formerly of Howard, spent Sunday in town with the Yarnells.

Miss Tessie Smoyer, of Milesburg, visited at the home of her uncle, Jacob Shirk, several days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shaughnessy and son, John, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pheasant.

On Monday morning Mr. Yarnell, on the George farm, commenced shipping milk to the Mill Hall condensary.

Miss Ethel Bitner and her sister, Mrs. John Barger, made a trip to Bellefonte on Saturday, returning home on the evening train.

Thomas I. Lucas and family on Sunday were out driving in their new carryall, which was purchased a few days ago from Berry Brothers, at Mifflinburg.

The editor of the Howard "Hustler" was out hunting, but although he traveled all over the mountains the only pheasants he found were Uncle Joshua and his wife.

Well, everybody in Mt. Eagle who had a gun with which to shoot was out in the woods on the first day of the season, but the only turkey that came to town was that shot by George Pursell, of Pittsburg, who is stopping with his friend, E. H. Leathers.

The people in town who have hogs to butcher have started on the job and the squeal is to be heard from almost any direction. Al. Struckland on Saturday killed two fine porkers. His mother-in-law and her daughter, from Lock Haven, were up to help with the butchering.

Mrs. Roy Rittenhouse Dead.

Mrs. Roy Rittenhouse, of Pittsburg, formerly of Philipsburg, whose maiden name was Miss Jennie Ellenberger, died last Thursday after having undergone an operation in a hospital in the former city. Her illness was very brief, and her death comes as a sad blow to her many friends. The deceased, was held in high esteem by all who knew her. She was aged about 27 years, and is survived by her husband, one little daughter and several brothers and sisters, one of whom is Mrs. George Houck, of South Philipsburg. The body was taken to Merengo, Centre County, and buried there on Monday.

NOISE OF THUNDER.

Theory as to the Cause of the Crackle, Roar and Rumble.

It has usually been thought that the noise of thunder is caused by the closing up of the vacuum created by the passage of the lightning, the air rushing in from all sides with a clap. But the intensity of the noise is rather disproportionate, and it is now supposed thunder is due to the intense heating of gases, especially the gas of water vapor along the line of electric discharge and the consequent conversion of suspended moisture into steam at enormous pressure.

In this way the crackle with which a peal of thunder sometimes begins might be regarded as the sound of steam explosion on a small scale caused by discharges before the main flash. The rumble would be the overlapping steam explosions, and the final clap, which sounds loudest, would be the steam explosion nearest to the auditor.

In the case of rumbling thunder the lightning is passing from cloud to cloud. When the flash passes from the earth to the clouds the clap is loudest at the beginning. Trowbridge gave substance to these suppositions by causing electric flashes to pass from point to point through terminals clothed in soaked cotton wool, and he succeeded in magnifying the crack of the electric spark to a terrifying extent.—Exchange.

THE PHALANX.

Its Formation In the Military Methods of Ancient Greece.

A phalanx in the military affairs of Greece was a square battalion or body of soldiers formed in ranks and files compact and deep, with their shields joined and pikes crossing each other so as to render it almost impossible to break it. At first the phalanx consisted of 4,000 men, but this number was afterward doubled by Philip of Macedon, and the double phalanx is hence often called the Macedonian phalanx. Polybius describes it thus:

"It was a square of pikemen, consisting of 16 in flank and 500 in front. The soldiers stood so close together that the pikes of the fifth rank extended three feet beyond the front. The rest, whose pikes were not serviceable owing to their distance from the front, couched them upon the shoulders of those who stood before them and, so locking them together in file, pressed forward to support and push on the former rank, by which means the assault was rendered more violent and irresistible." The spears of those behind also stopped the missiles of the enemy. Each man's pike was twenty-three feet long. The word phalanx is also used for any combination of people distinguished for solidity and firmness. A grand phalanx consisted of 16,384 men.

Charlotte Corday.

Charlotte Corday, the slayer of Marat, was, according to the best authorities, of noble lineage. Unlike the Maid of Orleans, the most illustrious blood flowed in her veins. She was well educated, and not a whisper was ever heard against her moral character. It does not appear that she ever manifested the slightest signs of insanity or fanaticism. Her action in killing Marat was attended by nothing like madness or hallucination. Taught to believe that the Paris butcher was the one man who hindered the righteous settlement of the strife that was destroying her country, she quietly went down to the great city and in a very unostentatious manner dispatched the man she believed to be her people's greatest enemy.—New York American.

Some Famous Dunces.

Literary history is crowded with instances of torpid and uninteresting boyhood. Gibbon was pronounced "dreadfully dull," and the utmost that was predicted of Hume in his youth was that "he might possibly become a steady merchant." Adam Clarke, afterward so deeply skilled in oriental languages and antiquities, was pronounced by his father to be "a grievous dunce," and of Boileau, who became a model for Pope, it was said that he was a youth of little understanding. Dryden was "a great numskull," who went through a course of education at Westminster, but the "stimulating properties of Dr. Busby's classical ferrule were thrown away upon the drone who was to be known as 'Glorious John.'"—London Standard.

Stated a Fact.

A clergyman highly esteemed for his many excellent qualities, of which oratory is not one, has recently had placed in his church by his loving congregation a new pulpit. It is a fine piece of work, ornate with carving and artistic embellishment. But the text inscribed on it, considering the effect of the good rector's sermons, might have been more happily chosen. "He giveth his beloved sleep," it runs.

The Way of Them.

"Oh, yes; he's a very intellectual man."

"What makes you think that?"

"I judged so from his talk."

"Why, what does he talk about?"

"He's forever talking about how intellectual he is."—Catholic Standard and Times.

SAILING THE AIR.

How It Feels to Soar Aloft In a Balloon or Aeroplane.

ALL SENSE OF HEIGHT LOST.

Consequently There Is No Feeling of Dizziness or Giddiness, and After Rising a Few Hundred Feet There Is No Sensation of Speed.

Comparatively few persons can look down from a great height without a creepy sensation running through the nerves and chasing down the spine, and one would naturally think these unpleasant symptoms would be intensified if one were to rise several hundreds of feet in the air in a flying machine. But that idea is a mistake, according to Mr. Charles C. Turner in an article in the Pall Mall Magazine, in which he tells how beginners are taught the use of the aeroplane and describes the sensations of flight. He says:

"The manner in which a course of flight lessons begins depends chiefly on the weather. If it is fine and calm a pupil is at once taken out for passenger flights, sitting behind the teacher or beside him, according to the type of machine, and having nothing to think about except the novelty of his experiences and the new aspect in which he sees familiar things.

"His first flight is a great event in the career of the pupil, and when it is over he is anxious for the next. His estimate of the difficulties that lie before him is more modest, and he is ready to besiege his instructor with questions. He climbed into the passenger's seat and gripped the stanchions with both hands. He need not have gripped them quite so hard, for he soon found that the motion of the machine was not in the least disturbing.

"To start it a mechanic stood behind the main planes and gave the propeller a turn, and suddenly the engine was giving out a tremendous roar and making the machine vibrate. Other mechanics were holding on to the tail booms to prevent the aeroplane from shooting forward before the pilot was ready.

"But almost immediately the passenger observed the pilot hold up one hand as a signal, and on the instant the machine plunged forward over the ground like a swift motorcar. Before he had time to observe and note his feelings the sensations had changed. The machine was traveling forward with perfect smoothness, the noise of the engine had curiously softened down, the ground no longer raced beneath the machine, and he realized that he was flying and that already he was twenty, forty, fifty feet above the ground.

"Flying has been compared to many things, but in truth no comparison is good. Perhaps I may correct one or two common but false notions concerning it.

"There is no sense of traveling at a great height. There is not the slightest danger of giddiness. To me this gave no surprise, for, as every balloonist knows, it matters not whether he looks down from 20 or 2,000 feet—the sensation of height is absent.

"To take my own case, I cannot look down a 100 foot cliff for many seconds before feeling unsafe, but I can look down from a balloon that is two miles above ground and can gaze at the scene below for half an hour without a qualm. It is the experience of every aeronaut.

"It is impossible also with reasonable accuracy without the aid of an aneroid to estimate one's height. You see trees far below you, and if you are high enough they appear to be mere bushes, but you cannot tell whether you are 400 feet up or 700.

"Again, the sense of speed is almost entirely lost when you have attained a height of 300 or 400 feet. The ground passes below you very slowly, while if you get up to 800 or 1,000 feet it is only by steadily watching the ground that you perceive that you are moving. Yet all the while there is that steady gale of wind upon the face that informs you of your speed.

"In descending a pupil notices that the speed of the ground rapidly accelerates. The chances are that he can not distinguish the moment when the landing wheels again come into contact with the earth. The machine moves forward over the ground until its momentum is exhausted, and he and the pilot then descend from their seats."

The Doctor's Sin of Omission.

Dorman in his "Primitive Superstitions" tells of an Indian who had been badly hurt by a grizzly bear. The medicine man prescribed a mixture of rattlesnakes' heads, wornout moccasins and chewing tobacco, seasoned with petroleum and red pepper, of which the patient was ordered to take a pint every half hour. "He was a brave man, but he died with the utmost expedition," and at the tribal inquest it was agreed that the remedy was faultless, but that death was due to the doctor's omitting to dance and yell.

Which Is Yours?

The remuneration received for services rendered has many names. The laborer calls it "pay," the skilled mechanic "wages," the city clerk "salary," the banker "income," a lawyer "fees" and a burglar "swag."—London Answers.

That which starts upon stilts often ends upon crutches.—Italian Proverb.

TRAPPING EAGLES.

The Chinese Get Them With a Baited Net and a Decoy Bird.

Every year, according to an old custom, in the second quarter of the September or October moon, the inhabitants of the Chinese province of Shantung go to Mongolia to hunt the eagles which abound in that region. The huntsmen march in troops along the roads, carrying on their shoulders long poles from which are suspended their baggage and provisions and on which are perched tame eagles to be used as decoys.

The hunters make use of a large net, spread open on the ground and baited with small dried fishes, in the midst of which is placed a tame eagle. The decoy naturally begins to devour the bait and thus invites its wild cousins to follow its example. When the birds have alighted and are feeding the hunter, from his hiding place two or three hundred yards distant, quickly closes the net by means of cords and thus captures the eagles.

Eagle hunting is very lucrative. The feathers are used in the manufacture of fans and are sold at a high price even in China. There are three sorts—Kicpei, black with white centers; Chema, white spotted with black; Toutsing, half white and half black. Several eagles contribute to the making of a fan, for only a small part of the plumage can be utilized; hence these fans are very costly.

ANIMAL EVOLUTION.

Changes In the Partridges of the Canary Islands.

A remarkable example of the effects of environment and changed conditions of life upon the forms of animals is furnished by a species of partridge living in the Canary islands. Over 400 years ago the Spaniards introduced the red legged partridge from Europe into these islands, and the bird has continued to flourish there; but, as recent examination proves, it has undergone modifications clearly brought about by the conditions under which it lives.

Its back has turned from russet color to gray. This looks like protective coloration, since the bird passes its life among gray volcanic rocks.

Its beak has become one-fourth longer and thicker than that of its ancestors and of its European relatives, and its legs also have increased in length and grown stouter.

These changes are exactly such as were needed to suit it to the life that it is now compelled to lead amid the rocks and on the mountain sides of the islands, where a more rigorous physical development is required than was needed in its former home.—Harper's Weekly.

Mighty Queer.

The negro on occasions displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words, says the National Monthly.

"Who's the best whitewasher in town?" inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a bo'nd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.

"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."

Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ah don't believe, sah, Ah'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah."

"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"

"Yes, sah, a powe'ful good whitewasher, sah, but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah; mighty queer."

Tennyson's Bird Sounds.

Perhaps the best word for the cry of the cricket is that of Tennyson. "Not a cricket chirr'd," he writes in "In Memoriam." But Tennyson was always curiously exact in his vocal rendering of the songs of birds. What could be truer to sound than "the moan of doves in immemorial elms?" Then, too, the linnet, the robin and the thrush "pipe," the woodpecker "laughs" and "mocks," the lark and the plover "whistle," the jay "scritches," the parrot "screams," the peacock "squalls," the blackbird "warbles," while the ocean fowl "shriek" and the eagle "yelps."—London Graphic.

High Finance.

"What makes him look so solemn? He gets his mouth's salary tomorrow."

"That's just the trouble. His wife and his mother-in-law allow him 50 cents a week out of it, and he's trying to make up his mind to strike for a dollar!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Balked.

"You got a raise in pay, didn't you?"

"Yes, but it didn't do me any good."

"Why not?"

"I talk in my sleep, and my wife found out about it."—Toledo Blade.

Pretty Steady.

"That Jones boy who used to work for you wants to hire out to me. Is he steady?"

"Steady? If he was any steadier he'd be motionless."—Judge.

Actions.

Every man's actions form a center of influence upon others, and every deed, however trivial, has some weight in determining the future destiny of the world.

ANCIENT ARITHMETIC.

Problems Schoolboys Had to Solve Thirty-six Centuries Ago.

There is a ray of vindictive comfort for the modern schoolboy in the fact that for over 3,600 years his schoolboy progenitors have been worried by just such problems in arithmetic as annoy him most.

Among the archaeological discoveries made in Egypt is a papyrus roll, in excellent condition, dating from about 1700 B. C. This roll, which had a long heading beginning, "Directions how to attain the knowledge of all dark things," proves beyond doubt that the Egyptians of that time had a thorough knowledge of the elements of arithmetic.

Numerous examples show that their principal operations with units and fractions were made by means of addition and multiplication. Subtraction and division were not known in their present form, but correct results were obtained nevertheless.

Equations are also found in the papyrus. Here is one that brings the Egyptian schoolboy home to us:

Ten measures of barley are to be divided among ten persons in such manner that each subsequent person shall receive one-eighth less than the one before him.

Another example given is: There are seven men; each one has seven cats; each cat has eaten seven mice; each mouse has eaten seven grains of barley; each grain of barley would have yielded seven measures of barley. How much barley has been lost?

The papyrus also contains the calculation of the area of a circle, attempts to square the circle and finally calculations of the cubic measurements of pyramids.—New York Tribune.

ENLIVENED THE SCENE.

But Hero's Improvisation Did Not Help Leander Much.

Innumerable are the tales of actors in difficulties. Here is one related of Christian Brandes, the dramatist, who in his youth belonged to a strolling company which played pieces of an extremely primitive kind.

On one occasion the play was entitled "Hero and Leander," the dialogue being left pretty much to the discretion of the players. It had been agreed, however, that Hero was to be coy and not confess her love for Leander till he had again and again expressed his readiness to be hanged, burned and drowned in her behalf. But the lady was soft hearted, besides being exceedingly fond of Brandes, nor could she listen unmoved to the first passionate pleadings of the youth, who explained that he had swum across the Hellespont to see her. "My dear Leander," she exclaimed, "I cannot resist you. Accept my hand and my heart."

Leander knew not what to say. All his prepared phrases were useless. The manager came to his aid with a loud whisper addressed to Hero, "In the fiend's name, improvise a few words and retire!"

The poor girl, turning to the audience, repeated her lesson. "In the fiend's name, I improvise a few words and retire," and then tripped off the stage, greatly relieved.—London Graphic.

A Rossini Joke.

Rossini promised a place in the opera orchestra to a trombonist and then forgot about it, says the Musical Courier. At one of his dinner parties the butler announced the visit of this same protege. Rossini hastened to welcome him and, relieving him of his instrument, disappeared a few moments to return with his friend. Handing the instrument to the trombonist with a request to let the company hear him, Rossini prepared to listen. Trombone to lips, the musician rose—dismay, no sound, cheeks bulging, eyes distended. In vain the unhappy man makes superhuman efforts to produce harmonious sounds. At last! Oh, effort supreme! With a sound like a hoarse goose cackle there shoots from the trombone a mass of sticky macaroni. "No harm, my friend," said Rossini; "you have proved yourself a strong musician." And the next day the coveted position was offered to the trombonist.—Boston Transcript.

Sunlight and Germs.

Here is an instructive experiment made recently on the effects of sunlight. Some germs of the terrible disease, anthrax, were sown on two plates of gelatin, and while one plate was kept in the dark the other was placed in the sunlight. The germs grew, and at the end of ten minutes there were 360 colonies or groups in the sunshine plate and 400 colonies in the dark plate.

One hour later the result was: In the sunshine plate, none; in the dark plate, 2,520. No disease germ thrives in sunlight.

Modesty.

Modesty is one of the sweetest and most desirable qualities one can possess, and yet too much modesty hinders advancement. When this quality is overdeveloped it antagonizes aggressiveness, without which no great success can be attained.

Parried.

Wife—A tree, you know, gets new clothes every year—hat, parasol, everything. Husband—Yes, darling—and makes them all itself.

What She Might Catch.

She—They say there are germs in kisses. What do you suppose a girl could catch that way? He—A husband.—Exchange.

Resist thy inclinations in the beginning.—Thomas a Kempis.

RAINED ICY BULLETS.

A Hailstorm In the Pyrenees Is a Serious Matter.

In a letter to the London Times a traveler tells of a hailstorm that came upon his party in the Pyrenees. "It was as if night was devouring day before our very eyes—a night, too, of tempest and torn and trailing clouds, of storm, smoke and thunder." Midway in the darkness was "the clear cut straight line of cloud which invariably tells of hail." Except for the shelter of a small tree the travelers were exposed to the storm's fury, and when they examined the hailstones they found they were of the average size of marbles, with a scattering here and there of much larger stones, "as large as golf balls."

This, however, was merely the prelude. The real storm came after they had reached their tents. "Suddenly the whole land was bombarded by great hailstones as large as lawn tennis balls." These fell with deafening roar on the canvas of the tent, and "it seemed only a matter of a few seconds for us to be battered into the earth, tent and all." An india rubber bath in front of their shelter, "with its sides beaten down in places, was half full of things like white cricket balls."

When the storm had finally passed the mountains around were white with the hailstones. The hail was weighed. "Six stones went to the kilo." The size was that of "a tennis ball and almost uniform." Seventy sheep were killed on the heights above the travelers' shelter, and in a neighboring valley thirty-five cows and some mules and the body of a child that had been wandering in the mountains "were brought down by a stream."

THACKERAY AS A TALKER.

A Grand Oratorical Display That Did Not Take Place.

Thackeray was terribly self conscious and usually presented a very poor appearance when he attempted to deliver a speech. "Why can't they get Dickens to take the chair?" he grumbled when he had to preside at the general theatrical fund. "He can make a speech, and a good one. I'm of no use. They little think how nervous I am, and Dickens doesn't know the meaning of the word."

An amusing story is recorded of the occasion when, with Mr. Fields, the well known American publisher, Thackeray traveled to Manchester to make a speech at the founding of the Free Library institution in that town. The would be orator declared that, although Dickens and Bulwer Lytton and Sir James Stephen were to precede him, he intended to beat each of them on this occasion. He insisted that Mr. Fields should be seated directly in front of him so that he should not miss a single word.

Later, as he rose, he looked at his friend as much as to say, "I'll show you what speaking is." He began finely, was excellent for two minutes and then in the midst of a most earnest sentence stopped suddenly, gave a look of comic despair and sat down.

"My boy," he said when the meeting was over—"my boy, you have accidentally missed hearing one of the finest speeches ever prepared by a great British orator."—"Some Aspects of Thackeray," by Lewis Melville.

What He Wanted to See.

It cannot be denied that the saddest thing in the world is a man trying to buy in a department store a garment for a woman. Discouraged before he begins, a walk through acres of garments which are none of his business depresses him still further. Saleswomen are pitifully tolerant, even kind, but his sense of inferiority grows. One unfortunate who tried to buy a sweater for a wife who was out of town did at last rebel. His first mistake was in language. "Thirty-six chest," he said. "Thirty-six bust," corrected the young woman. At last in a helpless tangle he bought meekly what he was told to buy. Then she asked, "Is there anything more I can show you?"

"Yes," he said solemnly, "the quickest way out."—New York Sun.

A New Way to Religion.

A clergyman recently said, "If I were to start a new religion, do you know what I would do?"

"You'd go out and preach, wouldn't you?" I asked.

"I'd do something else first," he replied. "I would go to the popular song writers, writers of words and writers of music, and I would get them to write songs expressing the spirit of the new religion. If we can only make people feel religion, if we can make them realize that it is already there in their hearts, make them love it, we can move the world."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Her Suspicions Aroused.

"My father persuaded me to take a course in domestic science."

"And how do you like the course?"

"Well, it looks like ordinary kitchen work to me. If my suspicions are confirmed I shall drop the course and make father buy me a fifty dollar hat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Buying Precious Stones.

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

Trial bottle 25 cents, enough to prove the merit of this wonderful remedy.

We can also give you a full size bottle for $1.00 on our absolute guarantee that if this very first bottle fails to give you relief it will cost you nothing.

The Dinner Table of Old France.

Could we restore for half an hour the dinner table of old France and obtain half a dozen instantaneous photographs of a royal banquet at any era between the reign of Francis I. and Louis XIV. such laughter would be heard as might disturb the serenity of Louis in paradise. The duchess, her napkin tied securely around her neck, would be seen nibbling a bone, the noble marquis surreptitiously scratching himself, the belle marquise withdrawing her spoon from her lips to help a neighbor to sauce with it, another fair creature scouring her plate with her bread, a gallant courtier using his doublet or the tablecloth as a towel for his fingers and two footmen holding a yard of damask under a lady's chin while she emptied her goblet at a draft. All of these at one era or another were the usages of polite society. During a feast of inordinate length it was sometimes necessary to substitute a clean cloth for the one which the carelessness or bad manners of the guests had reduced to a deplorable condition.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Transformation.

They sat hand in hand on the yellow sands, in the shelter of a bowlder, watching the fleecy wavelets creep timorously shoreward.

"Frankie," she sighed, "say I'm oos ickle petsie once more."

"Oo's my ickle petsie, blessums ickle heart," came from the youth in the puce socks.

Up to the blue heavens rose a fat guffaw from the other side of the bowlder.

"Ickle petsie! Ickle petsie!" chuckled a corpulent gentleman with a four day stubble growth.

"Go it, Frankie! You ain't arf done yet. Eight years ago"—

"'Enry!" interrupted a shrill voice from the cliffs above. "You'll sleep wot little sense you 'ave got away if you ain't careful. Thought you was goin' to get some wheiks for tea!"

"Eight years ago, Frankie," continued the stout gentleman, mournfully, jerking his thumb cliffward, "she was my ickle petsie!"—London Tit-Bits.

Florence Nightingale.

There is a story that after the return to England of the troops from the Crimea Lord Stratford at a dinner suggested that those present should write on a piece of paper the name of the person whose Crimean reputation would endure longest. When the votes came to be examined it was found that not a single soldier had received a vote. Every paper bore the same two words—Florence Nightingale.

The "Lady With the Lamp" used to relate the following story: "Calling one day on one of her humble neighbors, she was surprised to see the usually tidy cottage in a state of great disorder. 'Why, Mrs. ——,' said Miss Nightingale, 'what is wrong with you? I never saw your home looking like this.' 'Beg your pardon, miss,' said the abashed woman, 'but, you see, I am expecting the visiting lady, and if she seed my place looking clean and tidy she'd think I didn't need no helpin'!'"

Chihuahua Dogs.

The true Chihuahua breed is the smallest race of dogs in the world. They are also the most highly strung, sensitive and valiant of their kind. Their sense of sound, sight and smell is developed to a marvelous degree, and they have a bark which would rise supreme above the noises of a boiler shop. A strange step sets one of the little hair trigger animals into a frenzy of ear splitting rage, and yet they are so keenly intelligent that they can distinguish between friend and foe almost at first sight, sound or whiff. Long before the duller senses of man can detect a foreign presence these little marvels of nerve force will have "sized up" the intruder, and if not satisfied that all is well their staccato warning will wake the echoes.—Los Angeles Examiner.

The Ruling Passion.

Among the well known figures of the Paris salons mentioned in "An Eighteenth Century Marquise" was Bossut, mathematician and abbe, who had translated Maria Agnesi's work on the infinitesimal calculus. "When he was dying Maupertius was by his bedside. No one knew whether the agony was ended. 'Twelve times twelve?' asked Maupertius in a distinct voice 'One hundred and forty-four,' came the automatic answer as Bossut breathed his last."

Appearances.

It is the appearances that fill the scene, and we pause not to ask of what realities they are the proxies. When the actor of Athens moved all hearts as he clasped the burial urn and burst into broken sobs how few then knew that it held the ashes of his son!—Bulwer-Lytton.

A Straight Tip.

"You can't see my husband. He is not at home."

"But, madam, I want to see him the worst way."

"Well, if that's the way you want to see him you'd better sit right there on the steps until he comes from the club."—Houston Post.

Infantile Depravity.

Elsie (aged seven)—Ma, I want a penny. Mother—What for, dear? Elsie—I asked Bertie Jones to pretend we're getting married, and he says he won't do it unless I have a dowry!

Harsh words are like hailstones in summer, which, if melted, would fertilize the tender plant they batter down.

A Very Large Mine.

There was once in Cripple Creek an odd character named Burns. He was an odd person who always, no matter what his work, wore what used to be called a "Prince Albert." He struck a rich vein of ore and named that the Prince Albert. Being of a generous and convivial disposition, this lucky fellow was, of course, surrounded by many self seeking friends. When he and they were in their cups some of them, with an eye to the main chance, managed to wheedle out of Burns on one pretext or another a deed of a share in his mine. With royal prodigality he scattered deeds about among his retainers and camp followers until finally something had to be done, and the case was taken into court. One of the lawyers had Burns on the stand. "Now, Mr. Burns," said the lawyer, "will you please tell the court how you can explain your conduct? The evidence shows that you have deeded away twenty-nine twenty-fourths of your mine. What have you to say to that?" "Well, sir," replied the witness, "you must remember, sir, that the Prince Albert is a very large mine."

A Cleanup.

The three amateur sharpers smiled.

They thought they had found an easy mark. He was well dressed and grossly inebriated. And he bore a tight roll of bills that looked like a bologna sausage.

"Boys," he thickly said, "I'm goin' to shend thish wad of shtuff to th' gov'ment laundry an' have it dry cleaned. It's sho fearful dirty. Maybe one of you gents would kindly shee it's addreshed to proper place?"

"Why, yes," replied the gang. "We'll take care of it."

"Thanks," replied the victim. "An' now I mush ashk you to lemme have a few clean bills for emergensish, don't you know."

So they searched themselves and gave him a new twenty and a ten and a five. Then, taking the soiled wad, they hurried away.

Two days later the three clever ones were arrested for having counterfeit money in their possession.

But the guileless inebriate was seen no more.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Born Diplomat.

"Splendid!" exclaimed the old colonel as C company passed the saluting base.

"Did you hear wot ole nasty face ses?" No. 3 of the front rank asked No. 4.

"Stand fast after parade, No. 4, for talking in the ranks!" snapped a sergeant from near by.

"It wasn't me talkin'!" muttered No. 4.

"You'd better not git two on us in trouble," advised No. 3 in a whisper.

"Talking while marching past!" echoed the adjutant. "What on earth did you find to talk about then?"

"As we was passing the salutin' base," explained No. 4, "the colonel ses, 'Splendid!' 'Yes,' I ses to meself, 'an' you've got the smartest officer in the British army to thank for makin' us splendid, and that's our adjutant.'"

"Er—sergeant, send the man away and don't bring such frivolous complaints before me again," snapped the adjutant.—London Answers.

The Change of a Word.

"You wouldn't think there'd be enough difference between the definite and the indefinite article to matter much, would you?" said a woman who writes for a living. "I made a lifelong enemy of a woman once just by writing 'the' where I meant 'a.' It was an account of her wedding I was doing. I said something about the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's aunt, and then I added that there were present 'only the few friends of the family.' The bride never got over that 'the' in front of few. It happened five years ago, and when my name is mentioned she still froths at the mouth."—Washington Post.

Beaver Tales.

The Indians say that if a beaver sent out from the parents' lodge fails to find a mate he is set to repair the dam. If he fails a second time he is banished.

An Arab writer has the same story. He tells us that those who buy beaver skins can distinguish between the skins of masters and slaves. The latter have the hair of the head rubbed off because they have to pound the wood for their masters' food and do it with their heads.

A Surprised Landlord.

The very young traveling salesman was registering at the village hotel.

"I want a room with running water in it," he remarked.

"Runnin' water?" cackled the landlord. "What do you want to do, mister—practice indoor trout fishin'?"—Argonaut.

The Getaway Fellows.

"What is this 'wanderlust' you read of so often as compelling people to leave home?'

"I don't know," replied Mr. Cumrox; "but, judging from my observation of people who have it, 'wanderlust' is German for 'creditors.'"—Washington Star.

His Literary Treasures.

"Jones took me to his rooms to see a collection of rare and curious manuscripts."

"What were they?"

"Receipted tailors' bills."—Cleveland Leader.

Family Jars.

The beginning of many family jars comes with the wife trying to jar a little money loose from the husband.—Atlanta Constitution.

Hoyt's Hospitality.

It was the habit of Charles H. Hoyt, the dramatist, to invite almost everybody he met to come up and spend a few weeks with him at his summer home in New Hampshire.

One night Hoyt, Bert Dasher, W. H. Currie, Frank McKee and several other house guests of Hoyt were sitting on the veranda of Hoyt's summer house waiting for dinner. The train had just arrived, and they saw an old farmer and his wife coming up the path.

"Who are they?" asked Hoyt. "I never saw them before."

"The dickens you didn't," replied Currie. "That is that old chap and his wife you talked to over at Springfield and invited to visit you."

"Oh, well," said Hoyt, "maybe they are just coming in to dinner. They will take the night train back."

Then he looked again and saw the hired man behind the farmer and his wife wheeling a big trunk on a wheelbarrow.

"No, by George," shouted Hoyt, "they are here for a run!"

And they stayed a month.—Cleveland Leader.

Long and Short Story Writers.

Which are the great short stories of the English language? Not a bad basis for a debate! This I am sure of—that there are far fewer supremely good short stories than there are supremely good long books. It takes more exquisite skill to carve the cameo than the statue. But the strangest thing is that the two excellences seem to be separate and even antagonistic. Skill in the one by no means insures skill in the other. The great masters of our literature, Fielding, Scott, Dickens, Thackeray and Reade, have left no single short story of outstanding merit behind them, with the possible exception of Wandering Willie's tale in "Red Gauntlet."

On the other hand, men who have been very great in the short story, Stevenson, Poe and Bret Harte, have written no great book. The champion sprinter is seldom a five miler as well.

Poe is the master of all. Poe is, to my mind, the supreme original short story writer of all time.—Conan Doyle in "Through the Magic Door."

Yosemite Versus Grand Canyon.

Yosemite for a home or a camp, the Grand canyon for a spectacle. I saw a robin in Yosemite valley. Think how forlorn and out of place a robin would seem in the Grand canyon! What would he do there? There is no turf for him to inspect, and there are no trees for him to perch on. I would as soon expect to find him amid the pyramids of Egypt or amid the ruins of Karnak. The bluebird was there also, and the water ouzel haunted the lucid waters. The reader may create for himself a good image of Yosemite by thinking of a section of seven or eight miles of the Hudson river midway of its course as emptied of its waters and deepened 3,000 feet or more, having the sides nearly vertical, with snow white waterfalls fluttering against them here and there, the famous spires and domes planted along the rim, and the landscape of groves and glades, with its still, clear, winding river, occupying the bottom.—John Burroughs in Century.

His Apology.

A recent refusal by a member of the English parliament to withdraw "one comma" of what he had said about a member of the government recalls the fact that Richard Brinsley Sheridan once declined to punctuate an apology. In the house of commons one day Sheridan gave an opponent the lie direct. Called upon to apologize, the offender replied:

"Mr. Speaker, I said the honorable member was a liar it is true and I am sorry for it."

The insulted party was not satisfied and said so.

"Sir," retorted Sheridan, "the honorable member can interpret the terms of my statement according to his ability, and he can put punctuation marks where it pleases him."

Poets' Licenses.

The poet was sick at heart. He just had submitted one of his very best productions to an unfeeling editor, who had rebuffed him in these gentle words:

"I wish there was a law about poets' licenses like the dog license law. If I had my way a poet would have to take out a license every year and those who didn't would be killed."—New York Press.

Her Little Composition.

A class was reciting in a school.

"Who can give me," said the teacher, "a sentence in which the words 'bitter end' are used?"

Up jumped a little girl excitedly. "I can, teacher. 'The cat ran under the bureau and the dog ran after her and bit her end.'"

Method In His Generosity.

My husband is awfully good natured. I gave him a beautiful box of cigars for his birthday, and he only smoked one himself and gave all the rest away to his friends.—London Opinion.

Strong Evidence.

"What makes you think he had been to a drinking party?"

"He came home," sobbed the young wife, "wearing a phonograph horn for a hat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Always Happens.

A man who goes around with a chip on his shoulder will finally encounter as big a fool as he is and there will be a fight.—Atchison Globe.

The sense of smartness is sure to make a man shallow.

A Good Bluff.

He was young and had just graduated from law school. His resources were exhausted, but he bravely swung forth his shingle and waited. But no clients stopped on that side of the street. His office rent was due, and his clothes were becoming shiny, but he went to his office with a regularity that would indicate a thriving practice. He was deep in an imaginary case, and when the authorities were all noted and arguments prepared he started forth downtown and thrashed the mayor's son, whom he met in the street. The act aroused the righteous indignation of the townsmen, and he faced an angry court. But in his testimony he was able to include a sharp attack on the mayor and his administration. He quoted law from Lycurgus and Solon and gave them the page, number and chapter every time. The case was continued and sent up to a higher court. At last it reached the supreme bench, and the young man made the most of his opportunity to show his ability as a lawyer. He lost the case and paid his fine cheerfully, for he had established for himself a practice which assured his future.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

President Johnson's Impeachment.

The house impeached President Johnson on Nov. 25, 1867, charging him with having removed Secretary of War Stanton in direct violation of the tenure of office act, with having appointed General Thomas contrary to the same act, with conspiracy with General Thomas and others for the intimidation of Secretary Stanton and the unlawful disbursement of the war department's money and with inducing General Emory, commanding the department of Washington, to disobey orders.

The house adopted the resolution of impeachment by a vote of 126 to 42. After the trial of the case before the senate the vote for impeachment there stood 35 to 19, thus being short of the necessary two-thirds. The senate adjourned sine die, however, without voting on some of the primary articles embraced in the charges against the president. Thereupon the chief justice of the United States court entered a verdict of acquittal on the record.—New York Times.

A Great Trade Secret.

As every one knows, the process of manufacturing the paper of which Bank of England notes are made is one of the greatest of all trade secrets. It is known only to the governor of the Bank of England and to three other persons intimately connected with the industry, which is carried on at Overton, a quiet little village in Hants. All that the outside world is allowed to know concerning this precious paper is that it is made, among other ingredients, out of charred husks and Rhenish vines.

Quite as profound a secret is the manufacture of both the paper and the ink used for American banknotes. The former has the double advantage of not being a secret preparation, but one that only "takes" one particular kind of ink, which is quite unique, the American government paying the manufacturer, who alone possesses the secret, the sum of $50,000 a year for making it.—Pearson's Weekly.

How Did He Know?

Joe, the fat boy in the "Pickwick Papers," spent most of his time in slumber. He was happier that way. Probably there are a good many other people in the world a good deal like Joe, but most of them do not get the chance for sleep that he had. This scrap of conversation, recently overheard, would seem to indicate that, although this is a nervous age, the desire for sleep is not wholly dead.

"I don't feel well," remarked Smith as he took off his coat in the office, preparatory to sitting down at his desk. "The trouble with me is that I haven't slept as I should. I don't feel well unless I've slept."

"That's the same way with me," remarked his partner. "In fact, I think I feel best of all when I'm sound asleep."—Youth's Companion.

The First Oyster Eater.

The gluttonous Vitellius is reported to have eaten 1,000 oysters at a sitting. "He was a very valiant man who first ventured on eating of oysters," King James was wont to declare, a sentiment echoed by the poet Gay:

The man had sure a palate covered o'er
With brass or steel that on the rocky shore
First broke the oozy oyster's pearly coat
And risked the living morsel down his throat.

Trying to Help.

Hotel Clerk (to rural guest closing front entrance)—Hey, there! What are you trying to do? Uncle Eben—Don't git excited, young fellow! I jes' thought, seeing as how I was prob'ly the last one in tonight, I'd do the right thing and lock the doors 'fore going to bed!—Puck.

Matter of Intelligence.

Mrs. Suburbs—John, did you call at the intelligence office today to inquire about a maid of all work? Suburbs—Yes, my dear. Mrs. Suburbs—Couldn't you find one? Suburbs—Oh, yes; I found a dozen, but they were all too intelligent to come out to this place.—Chicago News.

No Necessity.

Perdida (at the candy pulling)—Where do we wash our hands? Myrtilla—Oh, we don't have to do that. Pulling the candy makes them beautifully white and clean.—Chicago Tribune.

Make not thy friends too cheap to thee nor thyself to thy friends.—Fuller.

Much Depends on Shoes.

"What are you going to do when your skirts are short and your foot takes a number seven shoe?"

This is the question propounded by a woman who surveys herself in a skirt that reaches down just below her shoetops. Her foot and ankle show, and when she walks, she knows that glimpse of the shoe buttons is inevitable.

One shoe dealer says that it is a matter of misunderstanding how to buy shoes.

Buy pretty shoes, is his first advice. "Get all you want of them, all you need, all you can wear. You will find that they come in handy, as a solace for feet. Your feet will be in better shape if you have twelve pairs of shoes than if you have six pairs.

"The philosophy of many pairs of shoes is not difficult to understand. A shoe pinches the foot in a certain spot. By changing the shoes the pressure is changed. Consequently the tired spots are rested and the foot is made comfortable."

Here and There.

Clement Dale, Esq., transacted legal business in Philipsburg on Monday.

Mrs. Synicker Walker spent the latter part of last week with friends in Tyrone and Philipsburg.

Miss Helen Schaeffer, of Bellefonte, was the guest of friends in Tyrone on Tuesday of last week.

Philip F. Garbrick, who is employed in a large glass factory at Kane, Pa., was at home over election day.

Paul Wetzel, son of Borough Engineer J. Henry Wetzel, is home from Buffalo, N. Y., for a short vacation.

Miss Rebecca Rhoads departed on Monday morning for New York city, where she will visit friends.

Wilson I. Fleming was an arrival home from Harrisburg on Friday and remained until after the election.

Frank Smith, who holds a good position at Johnstown, Pa., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith, of this place.

Tuesday evening the Knights of Columbus will hold a 500 party in their hall. After card playing an orchestra dance will be held.

Mrs. Mary Taylor was painfully bruised by falling down a stairway last Friday evening while calling on her daughter, Mrs. W. D. Zerby.

J. Homer Decker, assistant clerk to the County Commissioners, was an over Sunday guest with E. J. Williams and family at Unionville.

Mrs. Frank Warfield entertained at dinner on Monday evening at her home on North Allegheny Street, in honor of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. George Hawes.

William A. Moore, formerly President of the Nittany Iron Company, at this place, but now a resident of Roseclair, Ill., is greeting his many Bellefonte friends this week.

Lieut. E. R. Taylor, who is military instructor at the Huntingdon Reformatory, was an arrival home Monday to be present at the election Tuesday.

William E. Hartsock, who is employed in the Pennsylvania Railroad Shops at Altoona, was a pleasant caller at this office Tuesday, while on his way home to Scotia to cast his vote.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Otto and little son, of Johnstown, Pa., are guests of Bellefonte friends and relatives this week. Harry is holding down a good position with the Pennsylvania Railroad in the flood city.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Lamade, Miss Annie Bradley, Charles Lieb and Walter G. Lamade were a jolly party of automobilists who journeyed to Bellefonte from their homes in Williamsport for a Sunday dinner at the Brockerhoff House.

There will be two big shows at Garman's Opera House next week. On Monday night, November 13, John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels will be the attraction. On Thursday evening, November 16, the card will be "His Honor the Mayor." Both are especially fine attractions and no doubt will draw large houses.

Miss Margaret Jacobs, one of the efficient operators in the Commercial Telephone exchange at Centre Hall, was a Bellefonte visitor several days this week, stopping over with her aunt, Mrs. William Resides. She was enroute home from Altoona, where she had been visiting with Mrs. Resides' sister, Mrs. Wesley Sauers.

Mrs. Thomas Burns, who before her marriage was Laura Murry and who at one time resided in Bellefonte, died on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at Philipsburg. She was 44 years old and is survived by a husband and five children, the youngest being 3 years. The funeral was held at Tyrone on Tuesday. Those from Bellefonte attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Beezer, Miss Agnes Beezer and Miss Kate McGowan.

On Saturday morning last Deputy Sheriff Fred Rees, accompanied by Henry Davis, left for Glen Mills, Pa., having in charge Harry Barner and Harvey Tressler, two young men recently found guilty by the Juvenile Court for breaking into and robbing E. I. Gillen's grocery store. The boys were sent to the Glen Mills Industrial school where they will have a chance to learn a good trade and receive an education.

Robert, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cherry, formerly of this place, but late of Montgomery, Pa., died at the home of his parents on Thursday evening of meningitis, aged 1 year, 5 months and 5 days. The remains were brought to Bellefonte and taken to the home of Theodore Cherry, on North Thomas street, where the funeral services were held Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

Dr. G. D. Green, of Lock Haven, who is quite well known in Bellefonte, had a valuable automobile partially destroyed by fire on Saturday last. At the time of the accident the car it was in charge of Warren Bauman, a machinist, who was driving it just outside the city limits of Lock Haven, when, while endeavoring to discover some apparent defect, which had recently manifested itself, the machine suddenly burst into flames which entirely enveloped the engine. Mr. Bauman jumped to save himself from being burned. An alarm of fire was sent into Lock Haven and the auto-truck from that city responded and soon extinguished the flames, preventing the car from being totally destroyed. The car was valued at $1,000.

Prof. J. Angel, the well known eyesight specialist, announces that he will be at the Brockerhoff House, in Bellefonte, from Wednesday morning, November 15, until Thursday evening, November 16. Prof. Angel is so well known to the people of Centre County that his visits here are always looked forward to with pleasure by his patrons. On the occasion of his visit here next week Prof. Angel announces a reduction of 25 per cent. in all his charges. This will enable many to secure proper treatment of their eyes who might otherwise be unable to do so. He announces that consultation and examination of the eyes will be free. Parents having children in school and who may happen to apparently be not so bright as some other pupils should have their children's eyes examined. The fault may not be in the child's mind but in the eyes.

Miss Maggie Fitzpatrick, of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John D. Sourbeck.

Miss Luella Houser died at her late home at Houserville on Monday night, her death being caused by typhoid fever.

Mrs. Annie McGuire, of Lancaster, is spending some time with A. J. Moore and family at their home, 324 East Bishop Street.

Edward Keichline, who is holding down a good position in the P. R. R. shops at Renovo, was an arrival home Monday to remain until after the election.

The ladies Bible class of the U. B. Church will hold a box social in the Ladies' Aid Society room this, Thursday, evening, Nov. 9. Ice cream and cake will be sold. All are invited.

On account of the foot ball game, State College vs. Colgate, Saturday, Nov. 11, the Bellefonte Central R. R. will sell for train leaving Bellefonte at 2 p. m. at one fare for round trip. Special return train will leave State College at 6 p. m. Game called at 3.15 p. m., after arrival train.

Olive, the 14-year-old daughter of Snyder Tate, of Coleville, met with a painful and quite serious accident on Tuesday afternoon. She was running along the street while on her way home from school when she tripped and fell. One of her knees struck the stone curb with such force as to cut the flesh through to the knee-joint and inflict a gash several inches long. It is greatly feared the injury will permanently disable the knee-joint.

Dr. J. Coburn Rogers, of Bellefonte, was this week notified of his appointment as a member of the examining staff of the White Haven Sanitorium. The appointment was made by the Board of Directors of the Free Hospital for Poor Consumptives and the White Haven Sanitorium on the recommendation of the Administration Committee. The honor is one of which he may justly be proud, and naturally it is deeply gratifying to his many friends.

Don't forget the football game on Hughes' Field on Saturday afternoon, next, at 3 o'clock. The Bellefonte Academy will meet the Williamsport High School eleven and a fine game is anticipated. A large crowd should be on hand. On Saturday, last, the Bellefonte Academy played the strong Mercersburg Academy, at Mercersburg, losing out 31—0. Mercersburg has one of the strongest prep school teams in the country and Saturday's game afforded the Bellefonte boys a rare opportunity to distinguish themselves and win new laurels for their school. That they could have accomplished this is quite apparent from the fact thatat the end of the first half the score was but 5—0. In the second half several of the Bellefonte boys, who had not trained as faithfully as they should have done, weakened ane Mercersburg won out easily. The Mercersburg Academy officials praised the work of the Bellefonte boys, especially the back-field players. The fact that the loss of what would have been a notable victory was due chiefly to carelessness in training on the part of a few players should serve as a valuable lesson to members of this team and other Academy teams.

DOWNTOWN IMPROVEMENTS

Council Orders Brick Paving and New Lighting for West High Street.

Bellefonte Council on Monday night passed the ordinance providing for brick paving on East High Street, between the Spring creek bridge and "The Republican" office. The street will be paved from curb to curb. In addition to this Council authorized the Street Committee to pave that section of High Street between the Spring creek bridge and the crossing extending from the Potter—Hoy Hardware Co. to the Bush Arcade. This, too, will be paved with brick. Contractor R. B. Taylor was awarded the contract for the grading and paving, his being the only bid submitted.

The Street Committee and Borough Engineer Wetzel were directed to go ahead with the proposed new lighting system along that section of street to be paved. The lights will be similar to those placed in the diamond some months ago, supplanting the old arc lamps. A smaller lamp will be placed at each of the four corners of the Spring creek bridge, one in front of the Adams Express Co. office, and one in front of "The Republican" office. Four of the smaller lamps will replace the one arc lamp now at the intersection of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and High Street. In addition to the foregoing lamps, W. L. Daggett, proprietor of the Bush House, will place two of the smaller lamps in front of the main entrance to his hotel.

Work on the new Spring creek bridge was begun on Monday. This will be rushed through to completion as quickly as possible. With a paved street, new lighting and a new bridge, the downtown business section will be completely transformed and present an appearance far more attractive than has ever been the case.

Borough Solicitor Mitchell advised Council that in 1904 temporary permission was granted Dr. Hale to erect a four-inch splash-board at the breast of the Spring creek dam, opposite John Noll's laundry. This permission was granted with the understanding that the borough could order the splash-board removed at any time in the future. On motion of Mr. Grimm, Council ordered the splash-board removed. Complaint had been filed that the splash-board caused the water to back up and damage the water wheel at the borough water works. It was also complained that the water passing over the falls during the dry seasons was insufficient to carry off refuse collecting in the bed of the creek.

President Harper directed the Street Committee to secure better sidewalk facilities for persons attending the A. M. E. church.

Council ordered notes for $1000 and $7000 drawn to take up notes for like amounts, the former for six months and the latter for three months. Both are at five percent.

Death of John Curry.

On Sunday evening at midnight John Curry, one of Bellefonte's oldest citizens, passed away at the Bellefonte Hospital. About two months ago Mr. Curry fell down stairs at his home in East Logan Street and broke his hip. He was taken to the hospital where he finally contracted pneumonia and death ensued, as above stated.

The deceased was born in County Clare, Ireland, eighty-seven years ago and when a young man twenty years of age he came to this country and finally settled in Centre county. He was one of the men who helped to build the Bellefonte & Snow Shoe railroad and for twenty-five year was in the employ of that road as track foreman. Later he engaged in farming in Boggs township and finally located in Bellefonte and conducted a general contracting business. Of late years he has lived a retired life.

John Curry was married many years ago to Miss Bridget Daley, a native of Ireland, who preceded him to the grave about twelve years ago. He leaves the following children, John, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. Henry Redding, of Reynoldsville, Pa.; Mrs. J. H. Gross, of Bellefonte, Pa.; Mrs. Joseph Lose, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Annie, Sue and Christine at home.

The funeral was held from St John's Catholic church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

Mr. Curry was a man of quiet, genial disposition and being an old resident could relate many interesting incidents of the early days in and about Bellefonte.

Miss Laura E. Ard Weds.

In the presence of a large number of guests from various parts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, Miss Laura E. Ard, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wilson P. Ard, was married on November 1st, to Robert Smallwood, a business man of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed in the beautiful home of the bride's parents, at Woodward. Rev. W. F. Brown, of Beaver Springs, officiated. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Dreese, of Lemont. A large wedding breakfast followed the ceremony. The bride was handsomely dressed in a heavily embroidered gown of chiffon cloth, and wore a diamond ornament, a gift from the groom. She was attended by her sister, Miss Maude Ard. After a honeymoon spent in Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Smallwood will reside in Paulsboro N. J. The bride is well known in Centre County, and her host of friends extend their best wishes for her happiness.
